Referendum Demanded On Shelter Cove

Sausalito Council Asked To Repeal Purchase Decision

The Sausalito City Council will be asked at its Tuesday meeting either to repeal its decision to buy Shelter Cove lots for recreation or to put it up for a vote of the people.

Spearheading the circulation of petitions were Warren Glass Jr., Fred D. Turner, Fred Perry Jr. and Rol Rose.

"Basically, it is the voice of the people to get the government back in their own hands," declared Glass.

He said the lots the city proposes to purchase do not represent a substantial portion of cove frontage.

"When you are buying only a small portion of the cove and the rest is left to be developed, it seems a waste of money," he said.

Mrs. Smith said the petition is legal and has signatures of more than the 10 per cent of the registered voters required for a referendum. The number needed was 280, she reported.

This is the first referendum called for in Sausalito in 16 years, declared the veteran city clerk. A referendum petition in connection with sandspit development a few months ago was thrown out as illegal.

Rocky Will Present GOP Nominee Tonight

CHICAGO (AP) — Republican presidential nominee Richard M. Nixon hammered to build GOP unity today behind the election campaigns he and Henry Cabot Lodge, his choice for a running mate, will wage.

Continuing his almost ceaseless visits with delegates, in advance of the acceptance speeches he and Lodge will make to close the Republican National Convention, Nixon:

1. Promised to campaign personally in the South, and urged upon Texas and Georgia delegations, if they are not entirely satisfied with the party platform, they take a look at the Democratic document.

2. Told the New York delegation that, if elected, he would act on appointments and other matters affecting their state with and through Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and the people he designates.

Nixon also disclosed he will set up a board of strategy to help him run the intensive campaign he is planning for the nevt three months.

There was a unity theme in the arrangements for tonight's windup ceremonies.

TO PRESENT LODGE

And Lodge will be presented to the convention by Rep. Walter H. Judd of Minnesota, a man who had considerable backing in the convention for the No. 2 spot.

Nixon's tapping of Lodge, the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, as his choice for vice president was a strong disappointment to a block of delegates who felt the Midwest was being overlooked.

The GOP convention did what had long appeared inevitable when it picked Nixon last night to battle Democratic nominee John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts for the White House.

ELECTION RIVALS

This will pit in the November balloting a 47-year-old Quaker, a relatively poor man and a self-propelled politician, against a 43-year-old Roman Catholic from a wealthy and politically experienced family.

In a post-midnight conference of the party's top leaders that lasted two and one half hours, Nixon tapped Lodge, the United Nations delegate, as his running mate.

Nixon's acceptance speech tonight is expected to cut the pattern for an intensive, fighting campaign he has said will take him into nearly every state in the union.

WITH PRECISION

Nixon's nomination came with machine-like precision on a single ballot from a convention that long ago had determined on him as the party standardbearer.

Republicans packed to the rafters of the smoke-filled hall were well equipped for their hour on nationwide television.

When Gov. Mark O. Hatfield of Oregon put the vice president's name in nomination, signs bounced up all over the floor and galleries, balloons floated toward the ceiling and

EXCITING MESSAGE

I-J Newsman's Wife Breakfasts With Ike

By JEAN B. DAY

CHICAGO—Yesterday morning I had breakfast with the president of the United States —what an exciting message for the home-going postcards!

And what a thrilling experience it proved to be!

The Constitution Room of the Morrison Hotel, where the breakfast for 250 was given by Sen. Thruston B. Morton, had a "family affair" atmosphere.

There were no speeches except the president's, and he simply eased into a warm little talk in which he seemed to present the whole heart of his political philosophy — the steadfast marching on down the middle of the road, on firm ground where most of the people want and need to be, avoiding the "gutters" of the right and left on either hand.

What this novice was totally unprepared for was the tremendous impact of this forceful personality so close at hand. He spoke without notes in an entirely conversational style.

In his pleas for the avoidance of "paternalism," he told of an article he had just read about a nation living under a socialized form of government. The result was a high suicide rate, increased drunkenness

Corte Madera Tax Rate May Drop 17 Cents

Corte Madera's town tax rate was tentatively lowered by 17 cents last night, making the new rate $1.08 per $100 assessed valuation.

The decision to reduce taxes came at the end of the town council's third session with its 1960-61 budget, which was tentatively set at $329,045, an increase of $12,225 over the original figure proposed by Town Manager Arthur H. Brandow.

TAX DROPPED

The tax rate was dropped by reducing the flood control tax of 20 cents to four cents and knocking two cents off the general tax of 77 cents. One cent was added to the park and recreation tax, bringing it to five cents.

The town tax rate was lowered last year from $1.48 to $1.25.

In reducing the rate, the councilmen wrote off a debt of $20,558 which flood control owed the general fund. The four-cent flood control tax adopted was considered sufficient to cover the $4,450 budgeted for flood control this year. The town spent $32,099 on flood control last year, including a large drainage project on Lucky Drive.

COUNCIL DOUBTFUL

Included in the budget was $12,320 for engineering, drainage and repairs on Harbor Drive, though the councilmen were doubtful whether the

Auditor, Fusselman Swap Budget Barbs

By RANDALL GOULD

What was supposed to be a conference between taxpayers and supervisors on the Marin County budget last night turned into an "austerity budget" cat-fight between Auditor Leon A. deLisle and Supervisor William D. Fusselman.

It was a good bout but poorly attended, with a mere 18 in the audience section, including Supervisor-elect J. Walter Blair of Mill Valley.

DeLisle took over following several speeches and a few questions based on printed copies of a preliminary budget. The auditor provided three copies of a proposed "austerity budget," sharply cutting allocations in the preliminary budget. This stirred Fusselman to immediate objection because there was not a copy for each board member.

Long wrangling at last brought things to a point where Chairman Walter R. Castro set 2 p.m. next Wednesday as the time for deLisle to bring in his full findings, with enough "austerity" copies for everybody. The board voted for a start of final budget hearings at 9 a.m. Aug. 8.

DeLisle explained how his data processing machines had digested budgets and expenditures of the last three years, on which he based a tax-cut-producing "austerity budget."

He intimated he could go before the board at its regular session next Tuesday and in 15 minutes clear everything. Castro, however, felt it more prudent to set aside more time next day.

Capt. Charles Clarkson of Novato led off the meeting with a suggestion that no salary raise be awarded the "35 or 36 county salaries over $8,000 a year," though he conceded that a deputy sheriff getting $400 a month "has a very hard time to make ends meet" and should get more.

Charles P. Guichard of Mill Valley next made a plea for county acquisition of Richardson Bay submerged land lest private owners fill everything but "a little MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet authorities detained three Americans, a Briton and a West German today in an incident involving distribution of the U. S. State Department's magazine Amerika.

The five were questioned about four hours, released, and told to leave the country immediately.

Informed sources said the three Americans were students who took copies of the magazine from the American Embassy and tried to distribute them among passers-by near a downtown hotel.

MARIN COMBO WINS AWARD AT JAMBOREE

Dollar Days Tomorrow: 'Real George' Event

From the time they open their doors at 9 a.m. until they close them at 9 p.m., the stores will be popping with bargains and crawling with crowds.

The occasion is San Rafael Dollar Days, midsummer "everything goes" bargain event sponsored by the retail merchants committee of the San Rafael Chamber of Commerce.

The 76 participants this year comprise the greatest number ever to join the citywide sales event. They run the length of Fourth Street from 861 to 1852, on Third Street from 369 to 1205, and extend onto Second Street, Lincoln Avenue, Grand Avenue, B and C Streets, Lincaro Street, Francisco Boulevard and even to Highway 101 at the San Quentin Wye—everywhere, bargains!

As to things being Real George—well, George Washington's picture, as shown on the dollar bill, will be the medium for buying the bargains featured at dollar prices in accord with the spirit of the sale.

"Everything goes" means, accorcing to Milton Schwarz, chairman of the retail merchants committee, that the sale is not restricted to specially purchased merchandise nor is it strictly a clearance sale. Both clearance items and special buys will be featured—whatever a merchant has that he wants to sell at a bargain price to stimulate trade.

The sale will continue through Saturday, with the usual store hours prevailing on the second day.

GEORGE GOES SHOPPING — George Washington, who came to San Rafael on learning that his likeness on the dollar bill would have extra purchasing power tomorrow and Saturday, prepares to buy some "duds" which will enable him to shed his identity as Father of Our Country and return to being Jerry Schendel, Independent-Journal advertising dispatch man. Mrs. Ross Black, the saleslady, suggests a pair of Bermuda shorts.

Nixon Speaks Now As Chief Of Party, Talks On His Own

By ERNEST B. VACCARO

WASHINGTON (AP)—Beginning today, Richard M. Nixon speaks as the leader of the Republican party, expressing "my own views rather than the Eisenhower administration position."

The vice president and Republican presidential nominee used those words in a pre-convention interview.

He said nomination would be a mandate to assume the party leadership and enunciate Nixon's, as distinguished from President Eisenhower's policies in "the most intensive campaign anyone ever undertook in my lifetime."

Nixon said he will not be critical of the past—"I am proud of my association with the Eisenhower administration and its record of accomplishments."

But, he went on, "I will be stating my own views. I will be talking of the new administration and looking to the future."

In a wide-ranging discussion, Nixon paid his respects to the political prowess of his Democratic opponent, Sen. John F. Kennedy, and said he expects his own drive for the presidency to be a "hard, uphill fight."

He said the election will be one of the closest in history and the outcome may depend on events neither he nor Kennedy can control.

"What happens at home on the economic front, and developments abroad as they effect our hopes for peace, could have a greater impact on the outcome than what the candidates do," Nixon said.

Nixon will spell out his "policies for the 60s" in day-and-night campaigning in most of the 50 states.

He reserved for the campaign the detailed steps he has in mind on the farm, foreign policy and economic fronts, and the extent to which they might depart from or build on the Eisenhower programs.

But he was willing to share a few glimpses beyond the campaign at what a Nixon administration might be like.

The 47-year-old vice president, who has exercised unprecedented responsibility in that post, would assign even more duties to his own vice president, he said, and seek to raise even more the stature of the office.

Nixon, the intense party man, insisted he wouldn't hesitate to pick a Democrat for a key Defense or State Department post.

"When it comes to foreign policy and national security, I would not be bound by purely party considerations. In picking the ablest men for such posts, I would not be deterred if I thought the best qualified men happened to be active in the other party," Nixon said.

Nixon's endorsement of the Eisenhower record does not bar him from going beyond it with programs and policies he deems essential to his election. Some of these may well go beyond the platform itself. Nixon is convinced it is great to have Eisenhower on his side, but that no man can transfer his popularity to another, and that he must create an image of his own.

"I have never said that I am the man for the presidency," he said, earnestly. "The election will determine that. That is the way it works out under our system of government. I am going to present my case to as many of the people as I can reach."

He would not have been available for the vice presidency if the presidential nomination had gone to New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

"I think that eight years in the vice presidency is long enough and it is a good rule to change," Nixon said.

Nixon said Rockefeller "would have made it a good, close contest. He would have been well-financed, he is an attractive and formidable campaigner and he would have given any opponent a rough time."

Nixon spoke realistically of the Democrats' nationwide advantage in voting registration and of the geographical appeal of their ticket, matching New Englander Kennedy with Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas.

"I'm going to campaign in the South as extensively as time will permit," he added. "All-in-all, I intend to visit more states than either presidential candidate covered in 1952 or 1956."

Did he think the Kennedy-Johnson ticket is the strongest the Democrats could have nominated?

"They thought so," Nixon said, "and I have great respect for Sen. Kennedy's political judgment.

Frans Taelemans, representing Belgium, said here last night that public opinion in his nation was "scandalized and shocked that Prime Minister Lumumba — who is head of a government whose incapacity and unwillingness to restore order in the Congo—at the moment the horrible mutiny of the Congolese army has been proven to the world at large—has been received at Blair House, which usually is the place where chiefs of state are received."

Pravda Bitter, Calls Nixon 'Chameleon'

MOSCOW (AP) — Richard M. Nixon drew bitter words today from Moscow Pravda, the newspaper of the city Communist party. In story and cartoon, it called the Republican presidential nominee "a weather cock and chameleon."

Moscow Pravda charged Nixon was linked with Wall Street bankers and with McCarthyism. It said he is an advocate of brinksmanship who supported the cause of "liberation of Eastern Europe," which it interpreted as creating conspiracies in Communist-bloc countries.

Soviet newspapers have not paid half as much attention to the Republican National Convention as to the Democratic. Most have ignored the Chicago proceedings.

GOP Keys Platform To Forward Policies

CHICAGO (AP) — Republicans today keyed their 1960 campaign to fostering and rebuilding under Richard M. Nixon the policies developed by Dwight D. Eisenhower.

That is the theme of the 10,000-word set of party principles adopted overwhelmingly yesterday night by the Republican convention which also chose Nixon as the party presidential nominee.

There were only a few scattered "noes" in the voice voting on the platform's approval.

A battle threatened earlier by some of the party's Southern and conservative delegates never came off

They had balked at what they considered the most forward-looking platform ever accepted by the GOP. They blamed it largely on Gov. Nelson S. Rockefeller of New York who, along with Nixon, had pushed for a liberal platform.

But in the end, after a week of wrangling over policy views, all concerned applauded and pledged to close ranks in support of both the GOP platform and the ticket in a drive for an election victory.

One major difference between the Republican and Democratic platforms, which parallel each other in many respects, is the emphasis on the role of government.

The Democrats called for considerable expansion of federal spending to spur the economy and stimulate growth. But the Republicans said any extension of government should be approached with extreme caution.

It was clear that the traditional policy differences between the parties still exists.

"We have no wish to exaggerate differences between ourselves and the Democratic party. Nor can we, in conscience, obscure the differences that do exist," said the GOP platform.

"We believe that the Republican program is based on a sounder understanding of the action and scope of government. There are many things a free government cannot do for its people as well as they can do for themselves.

"There are some things no government should promise or attempt to do. The functions of government are so great as to bear no needless enlargement."

But having said that, the GOP embarked on a long list of pledges to stimulate foreign policies, continue a no-price-ceiling defense plan, take positive steps to aid business, labor and agriculture, and wipe out racial discrimination in all walks of American life.

TRAGEDY IN CHICAGO

13 Perish As 'Copter Crashes In Cemetery

CHICAGO (AP)—A brief helicopter hop between airports ended abruptly in fiery death in a gloomy suburban cemetery last night for all 13 persons aboard.

The helicopter, carrying 11 passengers and two crewmen, appeared to stop in air, witnesses reported, then weaved a moment before plunging earthward.

"It was a big red flash," said Ed Gauger, who from his back porch watched the helicopter sweep in close over the trees and crash four blocks away. State trooper Henry Pilotto said the craft was afire before it crashed.

The fuselage containing at least five bodies ripped into a cluster of tombstones and erupted in white-hot fury. The tail section with three bodies, was more than two blocks away.

All the victims were men, who came from a half dozen states in the Midwest and West Coast. The helicopter shuttle service is used primarily by air travelers who must go from one airport to the other to change flights.

Some of the bodies were burned black: others were twisted in grotesque shapes.

An official of the company, Chicago Helicopter Airways, Inc., said it appeared the tail section of the helicopter, similar to one used yesterday by President Eisenhower on a visit to the Republican Convention, apparently fell off in flight.

A 600-foot slash in the tree tops approaching the crash scene indicated the pilot, Robert Meyer, 37, of Worth, Ill., fought desperately to gain altitude until the final moment. Meyer had flown for the line for 10 years.

The fatalities were the first for the 13-year-old firm which began ferrying passengers in 1956. Last week it flew Mayor Richard J. Daley as its 500,000 passenger.

The helicopter, an S58C, was making the 11-minute trip between Midway Airport to O'Hare International Airport.

State's Job Over At GOP Convention

By CHAPIN A. DAY

CHICAGO — The 1,331 delegates to the Republican National Convention did their duty last night.

Seated on the convention floor, probably the worst seats in the International Amphitheater, the delegates had trouble seeing and hearing what was going on, but they raised their voices in a chorus of ayes to: 1. adopt without dispute or debate the 1960 platform, remade in the likeness of the Nixon-Rockefeller statement of policy.

NIXON VOTE

2. Voted 1,321 to 10, then made it unanimous, to nominate Richard M. Nixon as their presidential candidate.

They now have only two more chores to do before heading home. Tonight they will nominate a vice presidential candidate to run with Nixon, almost certainly Henry Cabot Lodge, this country's delegate to the United Nations, and then listen to the acceptance speeches.

Last night, however, the things that weren't done were more notable than those that were. Opposition to places in the platform, particularly from the southerners on civil rights, apparently dissolved in the balm of unity which pervaded the auditorium.

NO REPORT

No minority report came out of the platform committee.

No substitute motions were made from the floor, in fact no one protested about anything except for a scattering of no votes on final adoption.

For just a brief instant, it looked as though the delegates might have something on which to express a preference.

Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona was nominated for president.

But it became immediately evident that this was not a serious nomination. The demonstration lacked the spark of authenticity. It gave the impression that if the band should stop, so would the demonstrators. There didn't seem to be many with their hearts in the shouting and banner waving. It was more as though they knew this was only a show.

It was, the band stopped the demonstration stopped. Goldwater's seconders were midway through their presentations when the governor himself strode to the podium, and withdrew his nomination, released his delegation to Nixon, declared his own full support of the vice president and urged all Republicans to "put our shoulders to the wheel and push Dick Nixon across the line."

Only Louisiana failed to follow his request. The 10 votes Nixon didn't get on the first ballot, Goldwater did. If California played only a minor part in the nomination of its favorite son, the disagreement of the morning caucus over civil rights, failed to reach the amphitheater. Sen Thomas Kuchel, chairman of the delegation, was one of the seconders for Nixon, and cast California's 70 votes for him.

Two other Californians, Rep. Glenard P. Lipscomb of Los Angeles and Mrs. Patricia R. Hitt of Orange, were named on the committee which today officially notified the vice president he had been nominated unless someone from the delegation is chosen to second a vice presidential nomination. California's convention job, easy as it was, is virtually over.

STATESMAN, SOLDIER

Lodge Brings Varied Career To Campaign

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Henry Cabot Lodge, chosen by Vice President Nixon for his running mate on the Republican ticket, deals firmly with the Soviets in both negotiations and debate.

He has shown that in seven and one-half years as the U.S. permanent representative to the United Nations.

By appointment from the President, Lodge was Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev's official guide on the latter's tour of the United States last September. Lodge himself toured the Soviet Union for two weeks in January and February.

He is best known to millions of Americans as the man they see on television, retorting vigorously to the Soviets at the horseshoe table of the U.N. Security Council.

He shows up well there. He is a broad-shouldered, 58-year-old six-footer with a handsome face, a deep suntan, bushy gray hair and an emphatic manner.

He can match Soviet spokesmen word for word in cold war talks. But he delivers his blunt speeches in an accent cultivated at Middlesex and Harvard.

He is grandson and namesake of the Henry Cabot Lodge who voted in the Senate to keep the United States out of the League of Nations. He was born July 5, 1902, in Nahant, Mass. He married Emily Sears of Beverly, Mass., July 1, 1926. They have two sons, George Cabot Lodge, assistant secretary of labor in charge of public information, and Henry Sears Lodge, employee of an engineering firm near Boston. They have seven grandchildren.

Lodge got his bachelor of arts degree from Harvard in 1924. For eight years he was reporter, foreign correspondent or editorial writer on the Boston Evening Transcript and the New York Herald Tribune.

He started his political career in 1932. He served two terms in the Massachusetts Legislature. In 1936 he was elected to the U.S. Senate.

He served there 13 years. He was re-elctd in 1942 but quit after a year for war duty. He was elected to a third six-year term in 1946.

A reserve officer since 1924, he was a captain at the time of Pearl Harbor and rose to lieutenant colonel, serving in Libya, Italy, France and Germany. He won many decorations.

For part of his Senate service, he was on the Foreign Relations Committee. In 1950, he served on the U.S. delegation to the U.N. General Assembly by appointment from President Harry S. Truman.

The next year, he became manager of the campaign to get the 1952 Republican presidential nomination for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Eisenhower was nominated and elected. But Lodge lost his senate seat to John F. Kennedy, now the Democratic presidential nominee.

In January, 1953, Eisenhower appointed Lodge U.S. permanent representative to the U.N. He also put him in the cabinet.

Stinky Trick

BISMARCK, N. D. (AP) — Patrolman Clarence Conitz tried the soft sell first in dealing with a skunk reported to be chasing children in a yard here. He tried to get the animal to run into a box. "I thought it was someone's pet," Conitz explained. But it wasn't. The uniform he was wearing will be out of service for a while. But Conitz won the encounter. He shot the skunk.

Koreans Vote Tomorrow In Crucial Ballot

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — More than 10 million South Korean voters go to the polls tomorrow in the most crucial elections since the republic was founded 12 years ago.

The caretaker government of Premier Huh Chung has promised fair and free elections. Charges of irregularities in the March 15 elections triggered demonstrations that forced former President Syngman Rhee to resign. Rhee and his Liberal Party had held power since the republic was born.

The voters will choose from some 1,700 candidates those who will sit in the 58-man upper house and the 233-seat lower house. Definite trends in the lower house will be known Saturday.

Results in the upper house elections are not expected to be known for at least two or three days. The delay was expected because the Republic of Korea never had a senate before.

The nation's 36,000 police went on a routine alert this morning to cope with any violence. National police director Kang Suh Ryong said special mobile police eams will be sent to localities where demonstrations against the liberal candidates have been staged.

Unconvincing Alibi

But a nurse complained Parker was a peeping tom. Police, who said Parker had climbed about 50 feet up, charged him with disorderly and offensive conduct.

Overwhelmed, Optimistic, Lodge Says

NEW YORK (UPI) — Henry Cabot Lodge said today he was "overwhelmed" at being chosen his party's choice for the vice presidential nomination.

He said he was "very optimistic" about the chances of the Republican ticket consisting of himself and Vice President Richard Nixon.

"It will be a fighting campaign and one that we will win," Lodge said. The 58-year-old diplomat told a jammed press conference at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel that he would leave late today for Chicago, and immediately on arriving, go to the convention hall.

Kennedy Says Demos Face Vigorous Fight

HYANNIS PORT, Mass (UPI)—Sen. John F. Kennedy today congratulated Vice President Richard M. Nixon on his nomination as the Republican standard bearer and said that with Henry Cabot Lodge as the GOP running mate, the Democrats would face a vigorous fight in the fall.

"I think both parties have pledged themselves to great goals," Kennedy said in an interview in front of his family's summer home. "And I think both parties accept these goals."

The question for the voters, Kennedy said, was which party by its action in the past has given evidence of acting toward growth and handling of such issues as unemployment.

The Democratic presidential nominee said he didn't mind last night's statement by former New York Gov. Thomas E. Dewey that Kennedy had suggested that President Eisenhower apologize to the Russians for the U-2 spy plane incident.

"I didn't say that," Kennedy said. "I said at the time that the President should express regret . . . however, I don't really mind what Dewey said."

Kennedy went to bed around midnight without waiting to watch the actual nomination of Richard M. Nixon as the Republican standard bearer.

George Bernard Shaw said "I dread success." And he pointed to the male spider "who is killed by the female the moment after he has succeeded in his courtship."

SOUVENIR FOR IKE—A silver statue of an elephant is held aloft by President Eisenhower during a luncheon in Chicago. It was given him by Midwest and Rocky Mountain areas state Republican chairmen. (AP Wirephoto)

Ike Relaxing In Denver, May Attend Jamboree

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — President Eisenhower relaxed today in this Colorado capital where eight years ago he was planning the campaign which took him to the White House.

In contrast, today he has before him a decision on whether to yield to the clamor of thousands of youngsters and attend the annual Boy Scout Jamboree at Colorado Springs, Colo., 60 miles south of Denver.

The job of campaign planning to keep the White House in Republican hands the next four years now is the task of Vice President Richard M. Nixon, Eisenhower's choice to succeed him. The GOP presidential nomination went to Nixon, as expected, at the party's Chicago convention last night.

The President watched the convention proceedings on television. He later sent a congratulatory message to Nixon.

Eisenhower, accompanied by his wife, arrived here yesterday afternoon from Chicago where the town and the convention gave him a roaring reception.

The President and his wife came to Denver to visit the First Lady's mother, Mrs. John S. Doud, who has been seriously ill for many months. They plan to stay until Friday, or Saturday morning and then fly back to Newport, R. I., to resume their vacation.

Wage Reports Deadline Monday

Monday is the deadline for employers to file state Unemployment Insurance wage reports and pay unemployment insurance taxes for the second quarter of 1960.

This reminder came today from Charles J. Brady, auditor in charge of the state Department of Employment in Marin County. Employers who need help in preparing their returns may contact Brady at 807 E Street, San Rafael.

Employers who fail to file wage reports and pay second quarter taxes on or before Aug. 1 will reduce their chances of receiving a lower rate next year. Brady pointed out that it is not possible to use payments made after Aug. 1 in computing employer tax rates. In addition, penalty and interest will be charged if the report is filed after the deadline.

Scandinavians Bristle Over Ike Remarks

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UPI)—Scandinavian countries bristled today at President Eisenhower's remarks that a friendly nation's socialistic policies had led to drunkenness, suicides and other excesses.

Eisenhower, in a speech to Republicans in Chicago yesterday, referred to "a fairly friendly European country" which had tried "the experiment of almost complete paternalism."

He said there had been a sharp rise in the suicide rate, "more than twice our drunkenness," and a "lack of moderation" there. He did not identify the country by name.

Swedish Defense Minister Sven Anderson, who is acting premier during prime minister Tage Erlander's vacation, blasted Eisenhower for his remarks.

"One must be glad that his period as president soon will come to an end if he has said this about Sweden," Anderson said.

In nearby Deunmark, where socialists also control the goverment, most Danes believed Eisenhower was referring to Sweden. But there was a nagging suspicion that he might have been referring to Denmark.

The Copenhagen newspaper Politiken said in a headline: "Sweden is 'bugbear' in preelection speech by Eisenhower." But a sub-head in the newspaper said: "The Swedes—or perhaps the Danes—pointed out as a warning of what 'socialism' leads to."

In Oslo, the Norwegian socialist government's newspaper Arbeiderbladet produced figures to play down the president's statements.

"One is tempted to believe that the country Eisenhower refers to . . . does not exist at all," the paper said.

Sven Ahman, New York correspondent of Stockholm's Dagens Nyheter, said there could be "not much doubt" in the minds of listeners that Eisenhower was referring to Sweden.

To Receive Degree

David G. Scovill of San Rafael will receive a B.A. degree in art from San Jose State College as member of its graduating summer session class on Aug. 5.

EISENHOWER URGES 'GREAT MIDDLE ROAD'

CHICAGO (AP) — President Eisenhower yesterday urged Republican candidates to follow "the great middle road" and ignore the gutter, left or right.

Eisenhower held forth to Republican office-seekers at a party breakfast the philosophy of Abraham Lincoln that the government should undertake only those things that the people are unable to do themselves.

"We ought to use it as a flaming battle flag on the highest mast the Republican party can put up and fight for it always," Eisenhower said.

Dag Reaches Congo

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (AP)—Cries of "Long live free Congo" and "We demand a united Congo" greeted Dag Hammarskjold today on his arrival in Leopoldville for a survey of the infant nation's grave ills.

The United Nation's secretary-general found the young republic rapidly being pacified by U.N. task forces but facing acute economic and political problems.

He hurried to Leopoldville from Brussels, where Belgian Premier Gaston Eyskens and other officials bluntly told him to keep hands off Katanga, the rich, secessionist province being policed by Belgian troops.

Conelrad Test Set Monday For Bay Area

A test of Conelrad, the civil defense emergency broadcasting system, will be made at 1 a.m. Monday on special programs broadcast to the Bay Area.

Information will be given on how individuals can increase their chances of survival on 640 and 1240 kilocycles.

Conelrad stations in other areas throughout the state will broadcast between midnight and 1:30 a.m. the same day.

The tests are part of a bimonthly series conducted on the first Monday of even-numbered months through the cooperation of the broadcasting industry, the California Disaster Office and the Federal Communications Commission.

Radio station KTIM in San Rafael participated in last spring's daytime test but will not take part in Monday's test since it is off the air during the night.

Allan K. Jonas, director of the state disaster office, said listeners will receive careful replies to any queries they may have.

Comments on the test should be addressed to Conelrad, Box 110, Sacramento, he said.

America Planning 260 Space Shots In 10 Years

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government's civilian space agency today unveiled a timetable of 260 space shots for the next 10 years—more than two shots a month—including a test flight of a nuclear-powered rocket in 1965.

Space scientists announced plans to put a Mercury astronaut in orbit and hit the moon with an instrument package next year, launch the first satellite astronomical laboratory in 1963 or 1964, and send the first unmanned spaceship around the moon and back in 1964.

"We expect to accomplish manned flight to a landing on the moon and return to earth beyond 1970," the agency said.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration gave the timetable in a series of reports to the opening session of a two-day meeting of 1,300 government, industry and university officials involved in space projects.

People Say The Nicest Things About Girard's

Most everyone who tries Girard's Original French Dressing says the best things about its delightful taste. Like the way its bright, fresh garlic flavor and spicy, sugar-free tang perk up a salad.

And they say that Girard's new bottle and label look as good as the dressing tastes. You'll like Girard's, too.

Sanitation Directors To Meet Aug. 5

San Rafael Sanitation District Commissioners will meet in the city hall at 12:30 p.m. on Aug. 5 instead of on Thursday, Aug. 4.

The date was changed from Thursday to Friday so consulting sanitary engineer Harry Jenks of Palo Alto can attend to report on the proposed treatment plant for Marin Bay subdivision.

The sanitation commission wants to know how much it woud cost to build a treatment plant to serve an ultimate population of 24,000 as compared with the Marin Bay need for 16,000. Latipac Perini Inc., developer of Marin Bay, will pay for a plant to serve its needs. However, the district wants to know how much more it would cost to build a treatment plant that could eventually serve all of McNear's Point.

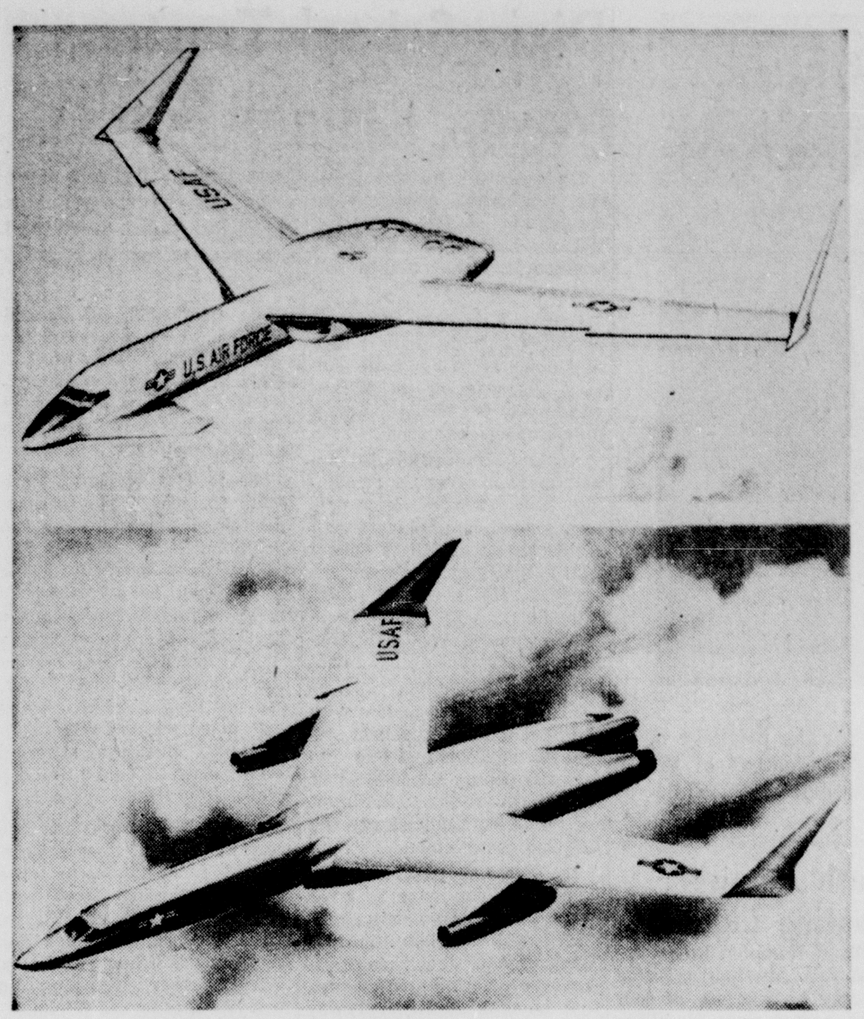
The dance is sponsored by the San Rafael Recreation and Park Department.

Rules of conduct, including dress regulations, are posted at the door. Jeans will not be allowed, according to Recreation Supervisor Faye Williams.



ATOMIC-POWERED PLANE DESIGNS

These drawings of wing-swept designs for nuclear powered aircraft were released in Washington today. Each has an assembly of jet-like engines mounted in the tail of the fuselage. The style is under study at the Convair plant of the General Dynamics Corp. at Fort Worth, Tex. Both designs lack conventional tails with vertical stabilizer-rudder assembly on each wing tip. The upper drawing shows indirect cycle nuclear engines, and the lower is for direct air cycle nuclear engines plus a pair of conventional jet engines mounted under the wings. (AP Wirephoto)

Blaze Perils Nike Base In Southland

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Southern California had a new 900-acre fire today that burned toward an Army Nike base. It started in the San Fernanda Valley some 25 miles north of Los Angeles and burned into the Angeles National Forest.

The Los Padres National Forest fire, about 50 miles north of Los Angeles, flared up again last night, but remained 75 per cent controlled at 12,000 acres. Some 1,000 fire-fighters fought it.

STANISLAUS FIRE

A five-day fire burning virgin timber in the Stanislaus National Forest may be controlled today.

Some 650 men have been fighting the fire. They have been assisted by heavy equipment and airplanes dumping borate.

Pacific northwest range and forest land was dotted with small fires after lightning storms of the past two days swept the area. One fire burned four buildings in the tiny town of Tyler near Spokane, Wash.

OPTIMISTIC

U. S. Forest Service officials were optimistic that they could quell the new fires before they reached the size of major blazes still burning across the area from a lightning storm of more than a week ago.

A 14,000-acre fire in the Hells Canyon area of the Payette National Forest in Idaho near the Oregon border surged over fire lines. But forestry officials were confident they would ring it again today.

A new fire burning 25 miles to the south had spread to 1,000 acres. It was caused by the crash of a borate spray plane making a run over the Hells Canyon fire. The crash claimed the lives of Pat Hendricks of Seattle and Virgil Sandes of Roseburg, Ore., pushing to 13 the number killed in fire-righting efforts on the past two weeks.

Tavern Owner Testifies In S.F. Bribery Trial

The bribery trial of four San Francisco policemen was in recess today, giving bar owner Edward George Bauman of Corte Madera a chance to rest up for another day of cross-examination.

Bauman, co-owner and proprietor of Jack's Waterfront Hangout on San Francisco's Embarcadero, "blew the whistle" on the four accused officers: Sergeants Robert McFarland and Alfred Cecchi and Patrolmen Michael Sugrue and Edward Bigarani.

He did it, he testified yesterday, on the suggestion of another bar owner: Sol Stoumen, whose Black Cat has long been under fire by the California Alcoholic Beverage Department as a suspected hangout for homosexuals. Bauman said he paid bribes to the officers so his tavern could continue, without molestation, to cater to the homosexual trade.

That catering, he admitted yesterday under cross-examination by defense attorney Harry Wainwright, included "Man of the Month" pin-up pictures. But he denied the "Man of the Month" was ever pictured in the nude.

Wainwright sought to show that Bauman had an "ulterior motive" for turning state's evidence against the four policemen. The motive: To save his liquor license. The attorney drew an admission that the alcoholic beverage control department filed charges against Jack's Waterfront Hangout last year

Wainwright also sought to establish that the accused police instead of taking payoffs to protect the Hangout, were actually keeping close watch on it.

Two other defense attorneys, Nathan Cohn and James Martin MacInnis, also had at Bauman during the session. A fourth will cross-question the accuser when the trial resumes tomorrow before a jury of eight women and four men in the San Francisco Superior Court of Judge Gerald S. Levin.

GRADUATION TONIGHT

Children Run This School For Safety

By CARLETON WILLIAMS

Fifteen Larkspur small-fry will walk down the aisle tonight and proudly pick up diplomas proving they have successfully completed a course in safety.

There would have been 17 graduates had not two of them been forced to leave the course in mid-term because of accidents.

"Karen fell off her bicycle and cut the back of her head. Gary stepped on a nail," explained the director of the course, Carolyn Kahn, 10.

It is precaution against this sort of thing that Carolyn and her assistant director, Debbie Joy, 10, teach the youngsters in their neighborhood. The schoolroom for their unusual class is a garage at Debbie's home at 11 Bayview Street.

Every morning at 10 o'clock sharp, more than 18 youngsters between the ages of three and six take their seats in the garage with all the quiet seriousness of a class of college graduates studying for their Ph.D's. Although only 15 are registered and will graduate in ceremonies at 7:30 o'clock tonight in Carolyn's back yard, the class always numbers a few more than the official enrollment.

"A few of them bring their little brothers and sisters," Debbie explained.

The idea for the course was born in Carolyn's mind a year ago last Christmas when she noticed that almost every small child in the neighborhood had been given a wagon.

"It was terrible the way they rode them down the driveways and into the street," Carolyn said.

She and Debbie, who lives across the street, decided if the mothers wouldn't take a stand, they would.

The result was a two-week course, now in its second summer session, which teaches the basic rules of safety regarding wagons, scissors, knives, fire, stairways, playgrounds, automobiles, swimming pools and what-have-you.

In the best tradition of well-ordered elementary schools, the morning class includes lectures, rest periods, song-fests, coloring periods and recesses. The songs and coloring are devoted to the theme of the course: Safety. Children acting safety in the face of danger are the themes of the drawings.

Among the songs are such ditties as:

"Safety, safety!
We learn so much in safety school.
Safety, safety!
We are so safe now,
Once you've learned how."

So important has the school become in the life of the neighborhood that mothers actually call one of the girls in the morning if their youngsters cannot attend. And the refreshments, also included in the daily routine, are now supplied by the pupils' mothers on a rotating basis.

The girls' source of information on safety are pamphlets, books and magazines on the subject which are published by insurance companies and many of the country's leading corporations.

Their willing pupils vie for the opportunity to prove they have studied their lessons well. According to neighborhood mothers, the accident rate has dropped considerably the past two summers.

Neither Carolyn or Debbie, incidentally, has ever had a serious accident.

They had hoped to have diplomas issued tonight by Corte Madera Chief of Police Frank Nelson. The chief is on vacation. In his stead will stand a genuine U. S. Marine Corps major, Don Sutcliff.

"How did you ever get such an important person to officiate?" the two teachers were asked.

"Well, he's my godfather," Debbie admitted.

8 Top-Notch Orators Named In Catholic School Program

Eight top-notch orators were selected last night from 47 finalists in Marin Catholic High School's summer speech program. Trophies were presented to first, second and third place winners in eight categories.

The eight first-place winners were Kathy Bodeen and Geraldine Grove, both of San Anselmo, advanced and beginning original oratory respectively; Helen Mendez of Mill Valley and Patricia Vest of Kentfield, advanced and beginning dramatic interpretation; Sondra Archer of Greenbrae and Raymond Giordano of San Rafael, advanced and beginning oratorical interpretation; John Goddard and Peggy Behm, both of Mill Valley, advanced and beginning humorous interpretation.

The finalists were among 70 students enrolled in a class taught by Rev. Bernard Cummins. Members of the Toastmasters and Toastmistresses Clubs of Marin, as well as former pupils, served as judges last night. About 200 parents and friends attended the judging.

Old Bomber Found In High Sierra Lake

FRESNO (UPI) — Wreckage of a bomber, possibly a World War II B-24, has been found in a remote lake in the High Sierra.

The plane was discovered by a U.S. forest ranger, Leroy Brock, who was leading a survey team in King's Canyon National Park, at Le Conte Lake at an elevation of 11,400 feet. Brock said he dived into the icy water and recovered a flight boot containing a human foot.

Youth Admits Shooting Lights

William Hampton Roach Jr., 19, of San Anselmo admitted yesterday he was one of four youths, armed with .22 caliber rifles and an air pistol, who knocked out street lights in Fairfax Tuesday night.

Roach was caught in a car with Tony Almeida, 19, of Smith Brothers Ranch in Fairfax, and two other boys, 16 and 17. Almeida, driver, pleaded innocent to the malicious mischief charge and will get a court trial at 3 p.m. on Aug. 5.

Roach is scheduled to appear in Marin Municipal Court at 3 p.m. on Aug. 18 for a probation officer's report and sentencing for malicious mischief.

Rattler Killed On Tam

A young rattlesnake, just beginning to grow its rattles, was killed last night on the Mount Tamalpais east peak trail by County Fire Warden Arthur McKay.

Dixie School Trustee Moves, Resigns Post

Dixie School District trustees last night accepted the resignation of fellow trustee William T. Griswold, a mining engineer who has served two years on the board.

Griswold on July 13 moved outside the Dixie District to a new home at 10 Par Lane, Novato. His letter of resignation was read to the remaining four trustees last night.

Anyone interested in appointment to serve the remaining two years of Griswold's term should communicate with E. E. Lenander, Dixie school board chairman, or with Dr. Virgil S. Hollis county superintendent of schools, said Dixie Supt. Dennie B. Willis. Dr. Hollis has the responsibility to appoint a replacement.

Trustees agreed to join with the San Rafael city school system in approaching San Rafael and county officials about safety precautions at the intersection of Freitas Parkway and Las Gallinas Avenue.

In September, some 600 youngsters will have to cross at the intersection daily, estimated Willis. When the new Terra Linda interchange at Highway 101 is completed, four lanes of Freitas Parkway will come into use. The parkway is the main arterial into Terra Linda.

The problem of the two school districts is complicated by the fact that one side of the street is in the City of San Rafael and the other side is in unincorporated territory.

Youngsters attending the new Terra Linda High Schools, Vallecito School and Barnard Hoffman School all will cross at the busy intersection.

The trustees authorized the superintendent to take steps to sell $100,000 in bonds to finance the new 14-classroom Terra Linda School planned for opening September 1961 next to Vallecito School.

They agreed to dedicate a 620-foot-long, 20-foot-wide street on the north edge of a Terra Linda Valley school site when it is constructed to the city of San Rafael. This school is planned to open by September 1962.

The trustees hired Penrod Moss, 39, who has been on the staff of the University of California at Los Angeles demonstration school, was hired at $9,900 a year as full time curriculum consultant.

Three new teachers were hired for the fall semester: Billie Joan Ohrtman from the Richmond School District, $5,400 a year, to teach fifth grade at Hoffman School; Dorothy Davis, kindergarten teacher from Madison, Wis., $4,800 a year, to teach at Santa Margarita School; William A. Carr, who has taught at Fort Bragg and in American schools in Germany, $6,800 a year, to teach seventh and eighth grades at Vallecito School.

Two assistant librarians also were hired: Mrs. Clarice Kraemer of Terra Linda, to serve at Santa Margarita and Hoffman schools, and Mrs. Margaret Council of Marinwood, Lucas Valley and Silveira schools.

The trustees will meet again next Wednesday at 8 p.m.

State Defers Action On Sandspit Dispute

SACRAMENTO (CNS)—The California State Lands Commission today deferred action on a request that the attorney general enter a tidelands boundary dispute at the Stinson Beach sandspit in Marin County.

Attorney Bryan McCarthy of San Rafael, representing the Kent Estate, told the commission the estate received a decree to quiet title a decade ago, setting the boundaries between its property and Stinson Beach State Park at the highwater mark.

Since then, the attorney general has ruled the highwater mark has moved shoreward and the boundary line moved with it. In such case, the attorney general said, the fence would be on state property, and should be removed.

McCarthy said a change in the boundary to fit the present highwater mark would cut from one-fourth to one-third of the property in a subdivision of the Kent Estate. He contended the land commission should live up to the agreement made in 1950 when the quiet title action was taken.

John E. Carr, director of finance and member of the commission, said it was difficult to decide the intent of a previous commission. I'm not sure they agreed this should be a permanent boundary," he said. "What would you say if the highwater mark moved out to sea?"

McCarthy said the land owner in such an event would expect the boundary to remain fixed.

Frank Hortig, executive officer of the commission, had recommended the commission authorize the attorney general to proceed with action to reconfirm the boundary line as established 10 years ago.

Boy, 11, Admits 5 Day Spree Of Destruction

An 11-year-old Marin City boy was in juvenile hall today after admitting a five-day spree of destruction along the Sausalito waterfront during which he sprayed poison on a bowl of fruit in a houseboat he entered.

Officer Peter A. Lampros of Sausalito police said the boy told him he staged his destructive spree after he ran away from home last Monday.

He ran away, he said, because he accidentally dropped his 1-year-old brother in the automatic washing machine while it was running. He said he thought he had killed his brother.

Lampros said investigation disclosed the baby actually was dropped into the washer, suffering a broken leg and cuts and bruises.

The 11-year-old said that after he broke into the houseboat of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Guy, he sprayed a bowl of fruit with insect poison.

The boy was found by police yesterday afternoon on the beach below South Street in Sausalito. With him was a blanket which he had stolen from a boat and ripped to shreds to make a sail for a green kyak he had stolen.

Lampros said the boy admitted breaking into a Sausalito houseboat Saturday afternoon and taking $30 in cash, a fish knife and pocket watch, and breaking into the Trade Fair Tuesday evening to get cookies and soft drinks.

The officer said the boy slept Monday night on a hill behind Marin City, moving to Sausalito Tuesday morning. He stole a fishing pole from a boat at the Sausalito Yacht Harbor, he told Lampros. Then he went to the Guys' houseboat Southshore at the end of pier one, where he played the phonograph, spilled food around and read magazines — and sprayed the fruit with poison.

When Mrs. Guy arrived home, she shooed him away, not knowing what he had done, Lampros said.

The boy entered the kitchen window of a houseboat where Miss Helen Spacek lives on Pier One, opened a can of chile, heated it, then poured it on the floor. He broke the closet door, spread paint on the table from an easel and ripped the antenna off the top of the television set.

Laundry Union Pact Reported In San Rafael

Laundry and Dry Cleaners Union, Local 26, has signed contracts with J. Walter Blair, county supervisor-elect from Mill Valley and owner of a string of self-service laundries, and with Bert Brown, owner of Marin Cleaners Drive-In in San Rafael, it was reported today.

A picket with a sign saying "attention public—this is a non-union launderette" appeared Tuesday morning in front of Blair's San Rafael Launderette at 926 Third Street. A similar picket was at Brown's cleaning establishment 520 Fourth Street on Tuesday morning.

Pickets were gone from both places this morning and it was reliably reported the two owners had signed union contracts.

BUDGET

There were queries about a Novato Boulevard item in the printed copies of the preliminary budget made available to the meeting, and, from Tom McDougall of Mill Valley, criticism that the budget did not reflect as "a statistical item" money pertaining to Marin City schooling.

DeLisle finally took the floor and produced three copies of the "austerity budget," which he said had been produced by Asst. Administrator Alan Bruce and Asst. Auditor Michael Mitchell. "I purposely laid off," he explained, "because I felt I was prejudiced."

In the course of subsequent flurries characterized by what Fusselman called "personal vindictiveness," deLisle charged that Fusselman didn't want the tax rate cut, and Fusselman suggested deLisle's "amusing" activities stemmed from the fact that "the gentleman is going to run in 1962."

"All you did was 'abstain' in budget discussions, say 'nyet' and attack the Civic Center," deLisle shouted excitedly. "You didn't help the other four members with all your experience. I don't think you said you'd reduce the taxes. . . . Yes, I'm running in '62."

Fusselman said his abstention from voting during early consideration was due to one incident when Supervisor Vera L. Schultz had asked his reason for a negative vote.

Describing what he termed "wonderful studies" by which data processing had given the composite of past budgetary requirements of departments, deLisle said this work reduced final budget chores to a "mainly administrative" level.

"The extent of disagreement is negligible," he said when Supervisor Schultz asked whether absence of most department heads indicated happiness over deLisle's findings. Fusselman said they didn't come because the administrator's office had notified them to stay away.

GOP

a bedlam of noise broke out that lasted 18 minutes.

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, who once was a candidate but withdrew, sat with a Nixon hat perched jauntily on his head.

When the noise died away, Gov. Paul Fannin of Arizona placed in nomination Sen. Barry Goldwater of his state.

There was an eight-minute demonstration while delegates carrying the state signs of Arkansas, Louisiana, North Carolian, Texas, Mississippi, Georgia, Washington, Arizona, Nevada, Wyoming, South Carolina, Idaho, Utah and Puerto Rico snaked about the hall.

Waiting in the wings for the seconding speeches to be cleared away, Goldwater marched firmly to the rostrum to decline the honor.

There were shouts of "No, no, no" when he asked for withdrawal of his name. But Goldwater told the delegates that despite previous criticisms he now felt the platform which the convention just had adopted "deserves the support of every American — over the blueprint for socialism presented by the Democrats."

Goldwater got his name in the record books, however. Ten Louisiana delegates cast their ballots for him on a roll call in which Nevada's votes put Nixon over the 666 needed for nomination. The final tally was Nixon 1,321, Goldwater 10. Then the convention made it unanimous.

Hallinan Rips Robillard's Ex-Attorneys

Attorney Vincent Hallinan of Ross, in an 83-page brief filed in automatic appeal against the death sentence for convicted policeman-killer Alexander Robillard, charged yesterday the defense attorneys with incompetence, "even cynicism," in the case.

Robillard was convicted of first-degree murder in the slaying of Burlingame police officer Gene Doran last Aug. 5. The State Supreme Court appointed Hallinan to handle the appeal.

"The conduct of the defendant's counsel was such as to amount to no representation at all," Hallinan charged in his brief. He said if the death sentence was upheld it would be "the classic example of a lawyer stipulating his client into the gas chamber." Stipulation is where one side agrees with the other in admission of evidence and testimony.

Robillard's attorneys were George Nye, Oakland, and James S. Green, San Francisco. Both denied Hallinan's charges.

Hallinan's brief asked the high court to reverse the verdict on grounds that evidence showed the slaying to be second-degree murder at most, improper evidence was used in the trial and error on the part of the judge.

Police Break Up Egg Fight

An egg fight on the grounds of the Dominican Convent was broken up by San Rafael police last night.

Seven San Rafael teen-agers — several of them shirtless and splattered with broken eggs — were apprehended.

A 17-year-old boy was arrested for disturbing the peace after he attempted to escape in his car. The other youths were released to their parents and scheduled to appear at the police station today for further questioning.

Officer John J. Kingston and Leon deLisle Jr. rushed to the convent at 1520 Grand Avenue shortly before 10 p.m. in answer to a call from the resident Catholic sisters.

The egg-throwers fled to the bushes.

Staking out the youths' cars, the officers nabbed the boys one at a time as they emerged. One fled in his car but was captured after a six-block chase. He was taken to juvenile hall after being booked.

Driver Arrested After Night Chase

James A. Chaney of 16 Sirard Lane, San Rafael, was booked on charges of running a stop sign, driving on the left side of the street, reckless driving and running a red light, after his car was forced to the curb at Third and E streets by Sgt. Carl Selby and Officer Charles R. Hickey in a police car.

Selby said the officers started in pursuit of Chaney's car after seeing it run a stop sign at Marquard Avenue, on the east end of the Miracle Mile, shortly after midnight.

With the police car in pursuit, Chaney passed another car on the inside and zipped through a flashing red signal on Fourth Street, then swung north to Third Street.

HAFB To Get First F-101 Tomorrow

The first F-101 for the 83rd Fighter Interceptor Squadron will arrive at Hamilton Air Force Base about noon tomorrow.

It will mean the beginning of squadron conversion from F-104 jets to the F-101. The F-101 can be used with SAGE, semi-automatic ground environment, an electronic ground control system; the F-104s cannot. The 28th Air Division, of which the 83rd is a part, is converting to SAGE equipment.

The first F-101 for the squadron will be flown from Hill Air Force Base in Ogden, Utah, by squadron commander Lt. Col. Robert Goetz. Approximately 20 more 101s will follow from units throughout the United States.

The squadron's 104s will go to air National Guard units and foreign governments. The squadron has had the F-104s since early in 1958.

Two sets of aspirants are running "new deal" candidates are Miles Benjamin, Hardy Westmore, Daniel Hayden, James Quiett and Mrs. Rose Sweeney — all of whom won in the June 30 balloting. Incumbents are Frank Phillips, Woodie White, Mrs. Gene Beard, Mrs. Doris Rochelle and Jack Johnson.

Those elected will take office Monday.

2 Pedestrians' Legs Broken In San Rafael

Two pedestrians suffered broken legs when hit by autobiles in San Rafael late yesterday.

Both legs of Charles Dora, 38, San Pablo laborer, were broken when he was struck on Highway 101 just north of Belle Avenue about 4 p.m.

Toney Freitas, 73, of 1134 Mission Avenue, San Rafael, suffered fracture of the left leg and injuries to his nose and left shoulder when he was hit at Fifth and B Streets three and one-half hours later.

The California Highway Patrol issues two citations in the Highway 101 accident, but neither went to the driver of the car that hit Dora.

The pedestrian himself, who had just alighted from a northbound car driven by Jimmie Lee McDonald of San Francisco, was cited for walking in an area of the highway posted against pedestrians. McDonald was cited for letting him out of the car in such an area.

Michael Lawrence Weiss of San Francisco, whose northbound car was following McDonald's and hit Dora, was held blameless.

Freitas was crossing Fifth Avenue at B Street when hit by a car driven by Nellie Marie Liljenquist, 49, of 19 Sequoia Road, Fairfax, reported San Rafael police. The man was thrown 25 feet by the impact.

Police cited Mrs. Liljenquist for failure to yield the right of way and for not having a valid driver's license.

TAX RATE

Opposing the inclusion of the Harbor Drive repair fund was Councilman Raymond de Young; who said he did not believe in budgeting money which might not be spent. De Young's proposal to allot at least half the money to the park and recreation fund died for lack of a second.

Adoption of the budget, with the lowered tax rate, leaves the town with an operating surplus of $28,000.

Opposing leaving such a large surplus was Charles Rowe, former city councilman who is now on the Marin County Hospital District board.

"I think you have underestimated your revenue," Rowe said, adding that he did not feel a business could be successful if operated on too heavy a margin of surplus.

Rowe also objected to a proposal from the audience that all special taxes be dropped and included in the general fund tax. "The taxpayers have a right to know where their money is being spent," he said.

Added last night to the original budget was $1,000 for purchase of playground equipment, requested by the park and recreational commission.

The unanimous motion of the commission to ask for the money was brought into the council meeting at 9:30 p.m.

Boaters Stuck In Mud Four Hours Rescued

Four young Sausalito women boaters spent four hours stranded in the mud off San Quentin Prison last night until they were rescued by the Marin Sheriff's Marine Patrol.

On their way from Larkspur in a 16-foot outboard cabin cruiser, they missed the Corte Madera Channel by 20 feet and ran aground just south of the prison's west gate about 7 p.m.

Their shouts finally attracted prison guards' attention.

Special Deputy Sheriff Scott Waterman and Frank Miller set out by boat to rescue the frightened women.

The deputies pulled the boat off with a towing line. Waterman boarded the women's boat and piloted it to San Rafael and a mooring.

The women were taken home by car. They are Arlene Arbuckle, the boats owner and skipper, of 77 Buckley Avenue; Jean Sorf and Mary Karis of Waldo Point, and Peggy T. (Mickey) Larson, of 50 Buckley.

Since Mrs. Eisenhower was not there, Mrs. Clare Williams, assistant chairman of the Republican National Committee, was the only woman at the head table.

Others presented by the president included Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Arthur S. Fleming, Secretary of Commerce Frederick H. Mueller, Secretary of Interior Fred A. Seaton, Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson, Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers and Postmaster General Arthur H. Summerfield.

It had been explained earlier by Senator Morton that several members of the official family, including Henry Cabot Lodge, were in Washington "minding the store." But it was an impressive array of the nation's officialdom.

Quentin Camp Convict Escapes, Caught

A convicted rapist and robber was captured early yesterday, 12 hours after he escaped from a San Quentin Prison conservation camp at Crystal Creek in Shasta County.

Elmore L. Mosher, 43, was apprehended by camp officials along a highway in the community of French Gulch, near the camp, reported Associate Warden Dale B. Frady.

Philip Hilton, 83 Dies In San Rafael

Philip Kimble Hilton, 83, a resident of San Rafael for six years, died at his home here yesterday after a short illness.

Hilton and his wife, Minnie, resided at 280 Hillside Avenue.

Hilton was born in Cornell, Ill. As a young man he moved to Davenport, Iowa, and subsequently for many years was a foreman at the Bettendorf Co. railroad flatcar building yard near Davenport. Hilton later became a self-employed carpenter, doing mostly house construction.

The Hiltons came from Davenport to San Rafael six years ago.

In Davenport he was a member of the carpenter's union and of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows.

He is survived by his wife; a daughter, Mrs. Georgia Nelson of San Rafael; two brothers, Arlie Hilton of Norfolk, Va., and Lawrence Hilton of Marseilles, Ill., and a granddaughter.

Funeral arrangements are pending at Keaton's Mortuary in San Rafael.

Grand Jury To Meet On Drug Case

Marin County's new grand jury will meet at 7:30 o'clock tonight in the courthouse to decide whether a former San Quentin Prison counselor should be indicted for conpiracy to smuggle drugs and letters into the prison.

Robert McKellar, 33, of San Francisco is accused of conspiring with Theodore Edison Sr., 59, of San Francisco; his wife, Juliett, 45, and their son, Theodore Jr., who is serving time in San Quentin for armed robbery.

Dist. Atty. William O. Weissich alleges that McKellar rented a post office box in San Francisco under an assumed name. The district attorney said he has information to believe that the Edisons sent drugs to the post office box, and McKellar picked up the drugs and smuggled them into prison.

TWO CAN'T TANGO WITH MART BASKETS

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Two supermarket pushcarts collided at the intersection near the canned peas and both "drivers" wound up in court as a result of the ensuing fracas.

"He just shouted "make way," Mary F. Bones told the judge.

Teles Cruz countered that the crash was an accident.

But he said Mrs. Bones grabbed a rolling pin from the housewares department and hit him on the head.

The judge said "$50 each."

The first steam warship built for the U.S. Navy was the Demilogos. Launched during the War of 1812, it had 44 big guns plus a trick gear that kept 300 pikes and cutlasses jerking in and out of her sides to cut down enemy boarders.

Errant TB Patient Gets Probation

An active tuberculosis patient, who violated isolation orders and got married in Reno instead, drew two years probation yesterday for violating the state Health and Safety Code.

Judge Harold J. Haley ordered Walter K. Seavey, 50, of 51 Alta Terrace, Corte Madera, to comply with all orders of the county health officer, Dr. Carolyn Albrecht.

Dr. Albrecht, on March 30, ordered Seavey to confine himself to his home except for trips to the San Rafael chest clinic.

Instead, Seavey roamed the county freely, visiting various grocery stores. On May 29, he made a side trip to Reno to marry a woman from San Bruno. She subsequently filed suit for annulment when she learned of his disease.

Bay Transit Tube Cost Placed At $127 Million

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — An engineering report said today that a proposed four-mile-long rapid transit tube under the bay between San Francisco and Oakland would cost $127,191,000, including its approaches, and that it would be earthquake-proof.

The tube would be a key link in a 100-mile rapid transit system now being considered for the bay area.

The engineers said exhaustive tests had been conducted to determine the effects of earthquakes on the tube. They concluded that it could be made to withstand any "conceivable" quake.

The report was prepared by Parsons Brinckerhoff-Tudor-Bechtel, a joint group of consultants employed by the Bay Area Rapid Transit District.

It said the tube would be constructed of 62 sections—each 300 feet long—of prefabricated steel and concrete which could be floated into position and sunk, at one point to a depth of 110 feet.

The engineers said the tube would stretch from the San Francisco Ferry Building to an eastern portal to be located on the Oakland mole. It would accommodate electric trains speeding up to 80 miles an hour.

The project, which will take four years to complete, depends on approval by the voters of a five-county rapid transit district of general obligation bonds to finance other parts of the system.

Plan Would Change S.F.'s Waterfront

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A billion-dollar plan to change San Francisco's waterfront, extending the city 1,000 feet into the Bay, was proposed yesterday by a representative of a New York investment group.

The proposal includes tearing down the Ferry Building. On the fill would be constructed a large official building, a hotel, a convention hall to seat 25,000 and a major sports arena.

Sausalito To Open Newest City Parking Lot Monday

Sausalito's newest city parking lot, between Bridgeway and Humboldt Avenue and from Bay Street to the Shell station, will open to the public at 10 a.m. Monday.

The motorist will have to pay to get in, and pay again to get out again.

City Manager Charles A. Brown said the 157-space lot will operate on a 24-hour basis. Motorists using the lot will enter on Bay Street through an automatic parking gate, paying a deposit of 10 cents to go in and 15 cents to leave.

Those wishing to park on a monthly basis, Brown said, must pay $5 per month, the fee being payable at the city hall. When the lot is filled, counting any stalls which are reserved monthly, the gate will automatically lock.

The lot was built by Piombo and Bresnan of San Rafael at a cost of $7,227. No parking stalls will be painted until the surface has had a chance to wear down. Cars left over four days without the owner notifying the police will be towed away.

A smaller parking lot on the south side of Bay Street next to the Bank of America was recently completed to handle monthly rentals only. It is already filled, Brown said.

Trail Horse Test Scheduled By Tamalpais Riders

The twelfth annual Junior Trail Horse Test will be held by the Tamalpais Trail Riders Aug. 14 at Deer Park School in Fairfax.

It is open to all Marin County youngsters between the ages of eight and 16, according to Mrs. Rachel Brown, secretary. The test will commence at 9 a.m. and will be over the natural terrain of the Marin Municipal Water District, Mrs. Brown said.

Trophies will be awarded in the junior division for participants between eight and 12 and in the senior division between 13 and 16. There is also a perpetual trophy known as the president's cup and a sepcial horsemanship trophy.

Entry blanks may be obtained from stables and saddle shops throughout the county. Additional information may be obtained from Jo Ann Stewart of Olema or John Strong of 20 Arco Way, San Francisco

Highway Congestion Grows Steadily Worse In Marin

Where, exactly, do the worst traffic jams take place in Marin County?

Some people think the morning and evening congestion around Third and Irwin in San Rafael is the worst in Marin.

Others would insist the worst is in the vicinity of the entrance to Hamilton Air Force Base off Highway 101, mornings and evenings.

On weekends, the Golden Gate Bridge toll gates can jam traffic all the way back down to the foot of Waldo Grade, on Highway 101.

Also on weekends, Redwood Highway traffic can back up for several miles from the entrance to Terra Linda.

Some people who live in Sleepy Hollow or Fairfax will nominate Sir Francis Drake Boulevard through San Anselmo and Ross as the most aggravating in all of the county.

Still other people would say that still other places must be the worst.

The fact is that we have a lot of traffic congestion around Marin and—despite millions of state and county expenditures in recent years—the situation can be expected to get worse.

People and automobiles are coming here faster than we can improve our highways.

It's almost as simple as that.

What can be done about it?

We ought to give active support to the efforts of the Bay Area Rapid Transit Commission in its search for alternative ways and means; that is, its search for a feasible system of moving great masses of people without further congesting the highway system.

"Closer to home," we can support proposals for improvements.

Next week, the state will unfold its preliminary plans for a new State Route 1, the Shoreline Highway, from Highway 101 over to Stinson Beach. We must not get into an argument about routing that will delay the start of the project.

Sometime this year or next, the state will begin studies of possible routes for a freeway route connecting the Richmond Bridge approach with West Marin. Maybe this route will follow the route of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard through Ross Valley and maybe it will skirt the edge of the San Rafael business district.

In either event, we must not get into routing dispute that delays the project.

Right at the moment, it pains us to see San Rafael residents battling the state's plan for improving Highway 101 through the city regardless of how inconvenienced they may be by the contemplated construction.

We need the highway improvements desperately; we would hate to suffer costly delays.

YOUNG PEOPLE NEED INSPIRATION

Thomas Edison sent the following recommendations to a youth assembly that requested a message from him:

1. "Always be interested in whatever you undertake, or may be doing for the moment . . .

2. "Don't mind the clock, but keep at it, and let nature indicate the necessity of rest . . .

3. "Failures, so called, are but finger posts pointing out the right direction to those who are willing to learn.

4. "Hard work and a living general interest in everything that makes for human progress will make men or women more valuable and acceptable to themselves and to the world."

Young people are more likely to devote time and energy more generously to a constructive life if they are motivated by a noble, Christ-like sense of purpose. Let them know they can be co-workers with God in helping humanity and you will truly inspire them.

"He who sows bountifully will also reap bountifully." (Corinthians 9:6)

Help parents, teachers and all others. O Jesus, to bring out the hidden greatness in youth.

By JOHN GRIFFIN
(For Hal Boyle)

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—President Sukarno is losing the battle of the cha-cha.

The evidence is as plain as young Indonesian couples dance to the bongo beat at a government-run night spot just half a block from his downtown palace.

Since traditional Indonesian dances are slow, some sociologists feel the cha-cha provides an element of hip-swinging abandon for a youth faced with mounting frustrations and limited opportunities.

A young Indonesian puts it a simpler way—"We like it—it's fun." Sukarno, a staunch nationalist, went on the attack a year ago.

In a series of speeches and statements, he labeled cha-cha and rock 'n' roll mixed up noises called music. He called the new dances the first steps in a foreign cultural imperialism that could destroy Indonesia's national identity.

The Jakarta army garrison outlawed cha-cha, even in private homes. Records in stores were destroyed, and a fine was ordered for anyone teaching the banned steps.

Sukarno stressed even more that Indonesian folk dances were the patriotic thing to do. He often keeps Jakarta's diplomatic corps going for two hours or more — elderly envoys and their wives from both sides of the Iron and Bamboo curtains weaving hand in hand about in an endless chain to beat of tom toms and chants from the Spice Islands. Sukarno leads the way.

BUT FEW of Jakarta's city-bred youth follow the presidential lead.

At first they went underground. Teen-agers and college students had cha-cha parties at private homes, behind drawn curtains. Foreigners with cha-cha records became popular hosts.

THEN CAME a bolder move. Enterprising band leaders took some of the Indonesian songs Sukarno likes so much and gave them a Latin beat.

REMEMBER WHEN

10 YEARS AGO

Two Bay Area women who came to Marin for a day of hiking were kept up a tree for nine hours after a 100-pound forked horn buck chased them and then stood guard. They were found by game wardens at 3:30 a.m. in a search for "spotlighters." After the buck butted a warden, the stubborn critter was shot.

20 YEARS AGO

A Marin County budget adopted by the supervisors called for outlay of $1,491,397.23 for the fiscal year 1940-41. Auditor Leon A. DeLisle said this would make the county basic tax rate outside of incorporated areas $1.30, or four cents per $100 over last year.

Creation of a Marin Public Health and Welfare Commission was authorized by the supervisors as first step toward creation of a general public health unit.

Let's Start Class In Auto Care

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

With the almost complete lack of public transportation in Marin County, individual car ownership is a must in a vast majority of cases. The care and maintenance of a car thus is of vital concern to a good many people.

Yet, many of us, particularly women, lack even the rudimentary knowledge of auto mechanics, which engenders a feeling of helplessness when emergencies arise. Furthermore, not having the knowledge on which to make sound judgments when repairs and adjustments are indicated, may be very costly.

I have already spoken to Dr. Samuel LeCount of the Adult Education Department of the College of Marin about the need for a course in practical auto mechanics for the layman. He indicated that such a course could be instituted in September if a minimum of 15 people indicated their interest. Such a course would be given one night a week and cost a total of $4 per student.

The Independent-Journal would be doing a community service by publicizing this. May I request that those of your readers who are interested write to me at 303 Live Oak Drive, Mill Valley. In this way I will be able to submit the compiled requests to the college.

Disturbed By I-J Editorial

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

Your editorial of July 15, "New Offices From Which to Lament Failure of Voters," was disturbing.

The I-J has consistently supported our new Civic Center against politically-inspired opposition, yet this was essentially an anti-Civic Center editorial. There was enough merit in your argument on behalf of the Juvenile Hall and County Hospital so that at first reading one might feel some resentment toward "county officials." But then comes the realization that the county officials, nameless in your article, who conspired to provide themselves with "fine new offices" at the expense of the young and the old, simply do not exist.

Sure, we need a Juvenile Hall and County Hospital, and badly. But to put matters in proper perspective, county officials recognized this need and made adequate plans for constructing the necessary facilities ALONG WITH other urgently needed governmental buildings. Several years ago, county officials chose bonds as the desirable way to pay for the Juvenile Hall and hospital, and the pay-as-you-go Civic Center. This decision on financing capital improvements was made for policy reasons which were adequately aired at the time, and it was made in connection with our long-range capital-improvement program—one of the finer things accomplished in Marin County in recent years.

Now, several years later, the Civic Center is moving on schedule. Voters have rejected two different bond proposals for the other two facilities. But to suggest that your nameless officials foresaw this when they adopted the whole building program is unfair. To hint that they deliberately and maliciously chose "fine new offices" for themselves in preference to a Juvenile Hall or a hospital is unfair and unjust. To imply, as your editorial must do, that the orderly progression of our Civic Center plans be interrupted is to suggest that we return to a makeshift policy of chaotic, uncoordinated planning.

No reason exists why we must choose between just two alternatives — either a Civic Center or the Juvenile Hall and Hospital. The need for all three has been amply demonstrated. If county officials have been derelict in their duty at all, it has been in their continuing search for long-term financing for the Hall and Hospital even after the bond issues were defeated. They should have provided, in the next budget, for constructing these buildings from current tax levies (which could still be done since the 1960-61 budget is not yet adopted.)

At the risk of pitching too many issues into one letter, let me remind you that you've recently published reports of the totally inadequate facilities existing at our County Jail. Unless the Civic Center moves ahead, so that the wing for the courts and the jail can be built when the Administration wing (now under construction) is complete, we should expect bleeding-heart editorials from you in a year or so claiming that "county officials" should have foreseen the need for a jail, too.

They have foreseen that need, as well as the others. The whole capital-improvement program must be kept to schedule if all of the county's needs are to be met—and they must be met. You go ahead and paint trees, but you won't be showing your readers the forest until the picture is complete.

(Ed. Note: Reader Burdick neglects to mention that voters turned down an early bond issue for a civic center.)

Sick I-J Article Written By Fool?

BENNETT CERF

Some book publishers are suspicious souls. A group of them was gathered at the Yale Club recently, and laughed uproariously at a timely witticism. A competitor at a nearby table observed them anxiously.

"Only one thing can be that funny," he muttered to his luncheon companion. "I bet one of those so-and-so's has stolen my best author."

Another published had occasion to visit a competitor in Boston who had an office with a window facing the Charles River, but he only came in about one day a week, so didn't have too many opportunities to enjoy the view. When the visitor announced himself, in fact, the girl at the switchboard said, "I don't know whether Mr. So-and-So is in today or not. That's his office back there. Look for yourself."

The visitor rolled back the folding door of the Boston publisher's office—and three seagulls flew out.

Cooking Class Enjoys Revived Popularity At Summer School

SAN RAFAEL summer school principal Ralph K. Hansen toyed with the idea of buying barbecue equipment and setting it up on the high school football field when 300 elementary school youngsters decided they wanted to enroll in cooking class this summer.

There was room for only 75.

"I possibly made some enemies," Hansen laughs.

When the popular class wound up last Friday, the 75 lucky students who made it—including a lot of boys — had learned to do simple things like making sandwiches and preparing breakfasts of bacon and eggs, and to develop other skills needed in the kitchen.

Maybe learning the art of barbecuing wouldn't have been such a bad idea either. It seems to be a necessary skill for every young man in suburbia.

Cooking classes caught on tremendously at last year's summer school, Hansen reports, and the result was the overwhelming demand this year.

SUMMER SCHOOL at San Rafael had other interesting aspects this year, too.

Robert Shore, the consultant who in September will begin development of a program for the "more able learners" in San Rafael School District, did some preliminary work with summer school pupils.

Working with elementary grade students in English, social studies and science classes (most of the youngsters were taking all three), Shore showed them how to organize and present what they had learned to the rest of the class in oral or written forms.

Classroom teachers concentrated on helping the students with content of the courses. These pupils were not necessarily "gifted," but had done well academically, Principal Hansen said.

In a humanities seminar still under way high school students are working mostly on an individual basis on various projects, doing research in the library and then presenting their information in the classroom. One student, for example, has spent the summer examining various novels of one type. Another has concentrated his research on political parties.

FAIRFAX SCHOOL District is hoping more voters in the district will start thinking about schools and school problems and return the 40-question survey mailed to them the second week in June.

At last count only 310 questionnaires had been returned, out of 1685 mailed to registered voters.

The completed questionnaires can be dropped in boxes at any of the three schools, Bank of America, Bank Pharmacy, Harry's Market or Alpine Market.

Supt. Homer Sisk plans to make a complete report on results of the survey next month. "We'd like to have as many questionnaires returned as possible to guide us in planning for the educational program of the district," he says.

With the district's financial condition in as bad a shape as it is, a whole lot of people living there ought to be taking a lot more interest in their schools.

Khrushchev May Turn Out To Be Biggest Issue Of '60 Campaign

CHICAGO — The lowering clouds on the international horizon are worrying both Presidential campaign camps.

The Republican leaders here and the Democratic strategists in Hyannis Port, Mass., are anxiously watching the cold-war barometer.

Their concern is that a dangerous international situation is developing and that, apart from the risk that it might blow up into war accidentally, it may cancel every other issue in the whole campaign.

Their uncertainty is that, if the tempo of Khrushchev threats and missile-rattling is stepped up, there is no telling whether such a grim state of affairs will turn voters away from Sen. Kennedy or turn them away from Vice President Nixon.

What they foresee is the possibility that the course of world events, totally outside the control of either nominee, will do more than anything else to decide the election.

WHAT IS DEEPLY disturbing the political leaders of both parties is the whole pattern of Soviet behavior beginning with Khrushchev's break-up of the summit in Paris—a pattern of behavior which Secretary Herter described last week as completely inexplicable. Khrushchev has often been abusive; now he has become threatening in the most reckless manner. It is not any single Khrushchev action but the whole sequence of Khrushchev actions which creates such grave anxiety — such actions as these:

2—The refusal of the Soviet Premier to attend the summit conference which he had pressured so hard to bring about.

3—The walk-out of the Soviet delegation from the Geneva disarmament meeting in order not to listen to the new American proposals and the break-off of all further negotiations.

4—Moscow's renewed threats to take over West Berlin on the avowed — and inaccurate — assumption, as Khrushchev put it during his visit to Vienna, that "neither Britain nor France nor the United States will fight (to defend their rights) over Berlin." If this is the premise on which Soviet intentions rest, you can see where they can lead.

5—The Soviet threat to send troops to intervene in the Congo against the United Nations command. This is a threat designed to hamper the efforts of the U. N. to restore order in the Congo and to further the kind of chaos on which the Communists thrive.

6—The Khrushchev accusation that the United States is preparing to make war on Cuba and the announcement that the Soviet Union will "protect" Cuba — as it did Czechoslovakia and Hungary —from attack by the U. S. and the Organization of American States.

7—The shooting down by the Soviets of the U. S. plane RB-47 on the ground that it had violated Soviet territorial waters, although U. S. radar tracking showed that the plane was never within 30 miles of Soviet waters or Soviet air space.

THESE ARE the events which caused British Prime Minister Macmillan to write to the Soviet Premier a few days ago to express his "anxieties as to the way in which the world situation is developing" and to ask the somber question as to what Khrushchev's "purpose is."

The Republican and Democratic leaders are worried about this pattern of behavior primarily because it is a grievous risk of war by miscalculation. They are also worried because it could throw the whole Presidential campaign into the lap of one uncertain issue. It could hurt Mr. Nixon if the voters felt that the Eisenhower-Nixon administration was to any important degree responsible. It could hurt Mr. Kennedy if the voters felt that his youth and experience were unequal to dealing with it.

Talent Galore To Go On Display At State Tourney In San Rafael

If you've grown sick and tired of following the trials and tribulations of the Giants, and if you're not quite ready for professional football which starts Sunday, you can quench your thirst for good wholesome athletic entertainment right here in Marin County for the next couple of weeks.

We're referring to the California State Semi-Pro Baseball Championships which get under way tomorrow night at San Rafael's Albert Field. A strong lineup of 24 teams will have at each other for two weeks until the state's champion is determined. The grand prize is one thousand bucks and a berth in the National Baseball Congress Tournament in Wichita, Kan., starting Aug. 19.

This is the state tourney's first visit to San Rafael and Marin fans should jump at the chance to see the semi-pros play at this top-notch level. Contrary to the opinions of some, who think of "semi-pro" as a clumsy aggregation of has-beens or never-weres, this tournament should produce some great plays by great talent.

The fact that more than 20 major league scouts will be in the stands should be proof enough that there will be really first class prospects in action.

Most of the teams are northern Californians, but some are coming from as far as Los Angeles, Azusa and Bakersfield. The Los Angeles Shriners have the honor of opening the tournament against the Travis Air Force Base Hawks in the 6 o'clock opener of tomorrow night's first double-header.

AND THE nightcap, to start at 8:45, should be a dilly with Marin's own red-hot Tiburon Pelicans taking a pot shot at no less than the defending state champions, the San Jose Nesbits.

Tiburon, which has mowed down nine of its 10 opponents to date, including the very good San Anselmo Ongaro Plumbers, naturally will shoot the works to knock off the defending champs in the very first round. That means the Pelicans will start fire-balling righthander Tom King, an experienced hand in tournament play, on the mound against the Nesbits.

And the Pelicans can expect similar treatment from the San Jose club. Its manager, Don Lopes, announced his starting pitcher will be John Oldham, who played three years in the Cincinnati organization, two of them, including last season, with the Seattle Rainiers. In Santa Clara Semi-Pro League this year Oldham sports an .094 earned run average and leads the league in strikeouts with 42 in 28 innings.

ALMOST EVERY team has a sprinkling of former professionals in the lineup, mixed with young college and high school stars dying to display their abilities before the ivory hunters representing the major league teams.

The Manteca Merchants, who play the Marin Buffalows Monday night, have eight ex-professionals and four college stars on their roster. Manteca's pitching staff includes Ralph "Blackie" Schwamb who once pitched with the St. Louis Browns before he ran afoul of John Law and wound up with San Quentin's Pirates. Several years ago at the prison Schwamb pitched against College of Marin and struck out the first nine batters to face him.

Recently released from custody, Schwamb joined the Manteca club and is now rated one of the finest semi-pro hurlers in the nation.

ANOTHER STAR of some note with Manteca is third baseman Joe Kirrene who spent three years in the majors after receiving a $65,000 bonus from the White Sox.

As for college talent coming to San Rafael, look for the name of Bill Cowan in the lineup of Kelly's Super Markets team from Bakersfield. This young left fielder won second string All-America honors with the University of Utah club this season.

Of course, Marin's entries have their share of stars. Tiburon's lineup will include Jim Barbeau, captain of the USF team; Hal Schutzman from Stanford and former pros Ron Stuart, Fred DeMartini, Gene Chaon and Fred Thurman. Marin's Buffalows will present three fine college players in Bill Buffalo (S.F. State), Dick Spackman (U. of Arizona) and Ron Cole (Fresno State), not to mention the numerous high school standouts.

OF COURSE all scouts' eyes will be riveted on San Anselmo's John Boccabella when the Plumbers play the Kelly team from Bakersfield at 5 p.m. Sunday. John could have signed pro fresh out of high school, but passed up a lucrative offer to further his education at U. of Santa Clara. He hit better than .400 with the Santa Clara frosh.

Yes, this tournament should provide a first class show for the Bay Area's baseball fans. Visit beautiful Albert Field and see for yourself that semi-pro baseball is indeed entertaining.

LITTLE LEAGUE

Pitchers Star In Tourney Openers

It looks like Marin County is gifted with a generous supply of outstanding pitching talent in Little League ranks following last night's first round games in the District All-Star Tournament.

Hurlers were the big heroes in these opening games: San Rafael American League 2, Marinwood 1; Gallinas Valley 8, Hamilton-Loma Verde 2; Novato 5, Fairfax-Sleepy Hollow 0; Twin Cities 8, Mill Valley National League 6; and Tiburon and Strawberry battled to a 2-2 tie in a game that was called at the end of eight innings. They were to resume the feud this morning at 11:30 o'clock.

At Novato, San Rafael's Ken Erdman struck out 15 batters and pitched a four-hitter against Marinwood, whose pitcher Paul Page limited San Rafael to only two hits. However, one of the hits was a screaming drive by catcher Ray Shone that hit Page on the shoulder and bounced into the outfield. Shone then proceeded to steal second, moved along to third on a passed ball and scored on a wild pitch.

WINNING RUN

This fourth-inning action broke up a 1-1 tie and the one-run margin was enough for Erdman to chalk up his impressive victory.

At Hamilton Air Force Base, Don Knott of Gallinas Valley pitched a two-hitter, struck out eight and aided his own cause with a home run in the 8-2 win over Hamilton-Loma Verde. Dennis Camgros also homered for the winners.

Only shutout of the day was hurled by Novato's Tom Owens, 5-0 over Fairfax Sleepy Hollow. Owens pitched a one-hitter and struck out 13. He was aided by a three-run homer by Johnny Youngs and a solo four-bagger by Frank Perachiotti.

It was a real slugfest at Mill Valley as the Twin Cities team slammed three home runs in the last inning to nose out the Mill Valley Nationals 8-6. Twin Cities pitcher Russell Smith, who struck out 10, won his own game with a two-run homer after homers by Art Wilson and Joe Bodoin in the same inning had tied it up.

Quarterfinals are on tap tonight. The schedule: San Rafael American League vs. San Rafael Nationals at Fairfax; Gallinas Valley vs. Novato at Hamilton AFB; Mill Valley Americans vs. winner of today's Tiburon-Strawberry playoff at Mill Valley; and Twin Cities vs. Sausalito at Sausalito. All games start at 6:15 o'clock.

Winners will advance to the semi-finals tomorrow in games at Hamilton Field and Sausalito, both at 6:15 p.m. Finals are scheduled Saturday, 2:30 p.m. at Mill Valley.

Pop Warner Grid Signups Slated

Signups for two Marin County Pop Warner Conference football teams will be held tomorrow, it was announced today.

The Mill Valley team will register its boys at Tamalpais High School at 9 a.m. while the Redwood Junior Giants will signup at Redwood High at 1 p.m. Both teams will have another registration on Aug. 6 at the same time and places.

San Anselmo's team will signup players Saturday and again on Aug. 6, at 9 a.m. both dates, at the San Anselmo Little League field.

San Rafael has cheduled only one signup for 9 a.m. on Aug. 6 at Albert Field.

Warner play is open to boys 11 through 13 years of age.

The garnet is the birth stone for persons born in the month of January.

Raiders Continue To Display Improvement

"We're getting better every time we hit the field," declared Coach Eddie Erdelatz of his Oakland Raiders.

But, he added, an extra seven days of practice wouldn't hurt.

Workouts started just three weeks ago for the Raiders of the neophyte professional American Football League.

"Like everything else, we're building," Erdelatz said at Santa Cruz training camp. "But not very fast. We're building slow but sure."

Against the Dallas Texans—the Raiders' opponents Sunday—the offense will be limited to a few running and passing plays.

The Raiders have held only two scrimmages and Erdelatz isn't holding any more until after Sunday's game in Kezar Stadium, San Francisco.

Erdelatz has not announced a starting lineup yet, but as of yesterday it looked something like this:

OFFENSE

DEFENSE

49ERS SLOPPY

Meanwhile, at Moraga yesterday the San Francisco 49ers scrimmaged and Coach Red Hickey dismissed their labors as "ragged and sloppy."

The defense outshone the offense in the 70-minute scrum as the latter was only able to push across a pair of puny touchdowns.

J. D. Smith scored one on a 15-yard jaunt and rookie fullback Mike Dowdle pushed the other across from four yards off. Fumbles and sloppy timing hurt many drives.

Another big scrimmage is due Saturday and Hickey said he would not make any cuts till after then. First exhibition game will be Aug. 6 against Dallas. The game will be played in Seattle.

314 Is His Number

BANGOR, Me. (AP)—There's something symbolic in the assignment of M/Sgt. Albert E. Martel to the 341st Air Refueling Squadron at Dow Air Force Base.

As a radioman-gunner in World War II, he flew from England in a B17 bomber that was number 341. It was hit by flak on a mission, but managed to land. The crew dug out the shell remnant and found it bore the number 341.

Candlestick Wind In News Again; It Helped Sanford

Lew Burdette describes draughty Candlstick Park as "the only place where you can sit back and read the Sunday paper as it floats by."

And Jack Sanford, who bested the Milwaukee Braves' star right-hander yesterday while hurling the San Francisco Giants to a 5-0 victory, is inclined to go along with him.

"It was the windiest day I ever pitched here," declared Sanford after posting his sixth shutout of the season. "I just tried to throw strikes, that's all. When Henry Aaron struck out in the second inning, I had thrown a fast ball, but the wind blew it right down toward the ground."

With or without the usual vortex, manager Tom Sheehan of the Giants planned to start red-hot Marichal (2-0) today against the crafty Warren Spahn (11-6) who was an established star before the smiling Marichal was 10 years old.

Sanford held the second place Braves to four hits yesterday, two of them being registered by Lee Maye who socked him for a single and a double. It was a much-needed victory at home for crew cut Jack, now 9-8, who had dropped seven out of nine decisions in the San Francisco stadium before game time.

Jim Marshall and Orlando Cepedo each knocked in two runs as the Giants rolled up a 5-0 lead at Burdette's expense during the first three innings. Cepeda, playing in left field while Marshall held down first base, also got a pair of singles after driving in two men to highlight a four-run outburst in the third frame.

Willie Mays also whacked out two hits and he got the Giants off to a fast start with a double which followed Joe Amalfitano's single in the first inning. Then Amalfitano came in from third as Marshall grounded out.

Marshall's line single brought across the Giants' second run in the third after Cepeda had smacked a two base hit for two more. Orlando scored from third on Felipe Alou's infield out.

Sanford preserved his shutout in the second inning after the Braves had landed two men on base on singles by Joe Adcock and Maye. With one down, the runners moved to second and third when Johhny Logan grounded out to Marshall. Then Sanford got Chuck Cottier to bounce back to shortstop Ed Bressoud and the Braves' biggest threat was over.

BATTING AROUND: The wind robbed Aaron of a home run in the sixth inning, according to Sanford, who declared "that would have been a homer in any other park." . . . Giant baseman Jim Davenport stayed on the bench when some barium which he had consumed for an X-ray shot of his ulcers made him queasy . . . Sanford never has had more than three shutouts in a season, but seems unexcited over the half dozen he has collected now . . . Don McMahon, the Braves' slumping relief hurler, fanned four of the seven Giants he faced and may be over his troubles, Manager Charley Dressen says . . . "His timing was off," according to Charley.

MAJOR LEAGUE ROUNDUP

Bucs Boost Lead As Groat, 'Heart Of Team,' Hero Again

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Dick Groat is the latter-day Eddie Stanky — they say he can't run, field or hit — he's just the heart of his team

Bob Friend, Vern Law, Roberto Clemente and Bob Skinner have pretty much monopolized the headlines for the Pittsburgh Pirates this season, but they'd be the first to admit the 29-year-old shortstop and ex-Duke basketball star is the guy who makes the club click. He's the glue that holds the infield together and the steady dat-tat-tat of his hits has kept Pittsburgh rallies going all season.

Groat demonstrated again how he comes through under pressure last night when he lashed out three hits, scored three runs and drove in one to lead the Pirates to a 7-3 victory oevr the St. Louis Cardinals.

The win enabled the Pirates to sweep a three-games series with the dangerous Cardinals and rebuild their National League lead to 1½ games over the Milwaukee braves, who suffered a 5-0 loss to the San Francisco Giants.

The Los Angeles Dodgers beat the Cincinnati Reds, 2-0, and the Philadelphia Phillies, 7-5, in other National League games while the Chicago White Sox ripped the Boston Red Sox, 10-4, and the Washington Senators scored a 5-4 15-inning victory over the Detroit Tigers in American League action.

Groat hasn't hit a single home run this season, but his three hits last night raised his average to .317. He has scored 60 runs and driven in 31. Rivals say he "hits with a sting" and he did just that last night, contributing a hit to three Pittsburgh scoring innings.

George Witt, Earl Francis and Joe Gibbon all failed for the Pirates before Fred Green came on to pitch the last four innings and allow the Cardinals only one hit while striking out four. Ray Sadecki suffered his fifth loss compared to four wins for the Cardinals.

Rookie Jim Maloney shut out the Dodgers for six innings in his big league debut, but Maury Wills singled home a run to snap the scoreless tie in the seventh and the National League champions added another run in the eighth when reliever Bill Henry wild-pitched with Jim Gilliam on third. Don Drysdale struck out six and pitched a four-hitter to win his ninth game for the Dodgers.

CUBS COLLAPSE

Bobby Del Greco and Pancho Herrera hit homers and Johnny Callison and pitcher Gene Conley struck key doubles for the Phillies, who handed the Cubs their sixth straight loss. Conley went 7⅓ innings to win his seventh game while Seth Morehead lost his seventh decision.

The White Sox feasted on Boston pitching for the second straight game with a 12-hit attack that featured a homer by Sherman Lollar and doubles by Jim Landis, Minnie Minoso and Nelson Fox. Turk Lown picked up his second victory although Gerry Staley shut out the Red Sox for the last three innings. Ted Williams and Gary Geiger homered for the Red Sox.

Hamilton Upsets Presidio In S.A. Softball Tourney

Hamilton Air Force Base Defenders upset Presidio Army Base 6-1 last night before more than 300 fans in the first game of the San Anselmo Recreation Department's first Invitational Softball Tournament.

Sohner Tree Service and Hamilton tangle at 6:30 o'clock tonight at the Hub City's Memorial Park. Sohner's will meet McPhail's tomorrow night.

Norman Evans hurled a four-hitter and struck out nine to post the win for Hamilton. His mates jumped off to an early lead with three runs in the first and two more in the second.

First-baseman Jim Shaw's two-run double in the first inning and Luther Johnson's clutch single in the second were the key blows for the Defenders.

Hamilton's final tally came in the fourth stanza on Evans' booming triple and Johnson's third successive single.

Presidio's lone score came in the sixth inning on third-sacker Charlie Paresi's long triple and catcher Fred Viviani's single.

Tonight's contest could be the best game in the tournament. Sohner Tree Service is working on a four-game winning streak, and Hamilton's surprisingly easy victory over a strong Presidio nine last night proves the Defenders are a team that could go all the way to win the tournament.

Hamilton Manager Art Marthallar is expected to pitch fast-balling Tom Gordon against Sohner's. Lou Perazzo is expected to hurl for the San Anselmo nine.

The starting lineups for tonight are:

Hamilton—Luther Johnson, 2b; Joe Collier, rf; Jim Shaw, 1b; Art Marthallar, ss; Doug Schmidt, lf; Jim Brown, c; LeRoy Karnes, 3b; Bob Beard, cf; Tom Gordon, p.

Sohner's — Sam Ramponi, lf; Bob Alvarado, 2b; Ron Jerome, ss; Jack Phillips, 1b; Dick Steinhart, rf; Earl Beyer, 3b; Keith Fraser, cf; Art Donati, c; Lou Perazzo, p.

KIDS' TENNIS CERTIFICATES ARE WAITING

Several youngsters who competed in the Marin County Junior Tennis Tournament have not yet collected their certificates of participation, Tournament Director Joe Rodota said today.

Rodota said the certificates may be picked up at the administration building at Albert Field, San Rafael any week day between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m.

The certificates were furnished by the Independent-Journal which co-sponsored the tournament with the San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department. Each participant is entitled to one.

Nagy Wows Marinites In San Rafael Exhibitions

Steve Nagy, captain of the Falstaff Brewing Co championship bowling team and one of the sport's greatest stars, entertained throngs of Marin County bowling fans yesterday in a day-long apeparance at Country Club Bowl in San Rafael.

In a special five-game match last night against another top-notcher, Jim St. John of San Jose, Nagy won by 925 to 901. Manager Dave Rivera said the scores were low, for Nagy and St. John, because brand new pins were used for the special exhibition. The match was witnessed by a standing room only crowd.

Earlier in the day Nagy, a colorful performer who has won virtually all the major tournaments, delighted the gallery by conducting a clinic and supplying numerous tips to local keglers. He also took on and beat Marinites in four separate matches.

He spotted Ruth Rowden 50 pins and beat her 225 to 215. Then he topped Joe Filippo 201 to 199 and 233 to 157. Against Steve Bennett the Falstaff representative won a 188 to 139 count and finally he downed Mike Weddell, one of the county's fastest rising stars, by an easy 221 to 150 count.

It was Nagy's only appearance in Marin. Today he was scheduled to visit Salinas in his busy exhibition schedule.

PLAYERS VOTE

S.F. Gets One Of 2 All-Star Tilts

NEW YORK (AP)—After weighing all the pros and cons, the major league players have voted to retain the two-year old, All-Star doubleheader—at least through next year.

Their decision was based on

(1) The need for the extra revenue to speed up the premiums in order to receive top pension benefits at the earliest age, and

(2) The belief that the fans prefer two games over one.

The players made one concession. They agreed the games should be spaced further apart instead of playing both in the same week. The 1961 games will be played a month apart—as in 1959.

The tentative dates are July 11 in San Francisco and August 8 in Boston. This year the games were played in Kansas City, July 11 and New York, July 13. The National League won both games to reduce the Americans' overall margin to 16-13.

Kansas City's 30,000-seat Municipal Stadium was filled to capacity but Yankee Stadium, which seats 68,000 was only half-filled for the second game.

FANS FAVOR TWO

"The players feel," said a player representative, "that despite the criticism from some newspapermen and baseball officials, the fans are in favor of two games, provided they are played in different sections of the country.

A game in San Francisco and another one in Boston would give fans in both the East and West a chance to see an All-Star game in person."

Critics of the two-game idea referred to the Yankee Stadium contest as nothing more than an exhibition, largely because the two managers—Al Lopez and Walter Alston—used nearly all of the available players.

Both games will be televised. NBC again will do the telecasting and pay an additional $250,000 for the second game rights. Sixty per cent of the receipts goes to the players' pension fund.

NOVATO HOSTS PONY LEAGUE TOURNAMENT

A double-elimination tournament will begin in Novato tomorrow night to determine this area's representative in the District Pony Baseball League All-Star Tournament in San Jose next month.

Opening game in the weekend series at Novato's Simmons Lane field will match the Southern Marin All-Stars against the Sebastopol All-Stars beginning at 6 o'clock.

Winner of that game will play the defending champion Northern Marin All-Stars Saturday at 11 a.m. Tournament games will continue at 4 p.m. Saturday, 1 p.m. Sunday until two of the teams are eliminated.

Visalia '9' Needs $5,000 To Finish Cal Loop Season

VISALIA (AP) — The poverty-stricken Visalia Athletics need $5,000 to finish the season in the California League.

The Visalia Baseball Assn. sent letters to area residents yesterday urging one dollar donations to help the team.

The club, in and out of the cellar all season, has a payroll and $3,500 in federal taxes to pay by July 31. A $6,500 deficit was left from last year and attendance is averaging only slightly more than 400 a game.

One official said the parent Kansas City club apparently does not have players to help. The Visalia Athletics are last in team batting with a .234 average. The leading hitter is .262, and the best pitcher has won seven and lost ten.

"Can't get crowds without players," the official said. "And without crowds you don't get money."

Bow Hunters May Get Some Law Changes

By EDWIN S. CAPPS

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — If anyone can drum up any enthusiasm for it in the recent hot spell enjoyed in most of interior court, the coastal deer season is about to open.

In fact, the archers have been zinging away since July 23 in their 10-day pre-season hunt. The regular coastal season opens Aug. 6 and runs through Sept. 25.

Talk about archers of late has been about as noiseless as an arrow going through the air. But there's a good chance that, before another archery season rolls around, there may be some important changes made.

There are quite a few Californians who like to take their deer hunting bow and arrow style. This became apparent in 1959 when Henry Clineschmidt, Fish and Game Commissioner, attempted to outlaw the season for the bowmen.

Clineschmidt drew back on this move, after considerable opposition developed. He said the proposal had been made because he did not favor special classes of hunters.

Even though the archery deer business has been "as usual" this year and last, Clineschmidt feels there's need for some changes. For the archers are about as unregulated a hunter as you can find.

NO REQUIREMENTS

Granted that few persons would venture into the bush in search of a buck with a dime store bow and arrow, there still is no requirement that they do otherwise. Gun-hunters are limited in the calibers of rifles they may use for deer hunting, with the .22 on the taboo list.

Not so with the archers. Clineschmidt has said before that he feels some sort of standards should be set for the bowmen's equipment.

This should not necessarily be fixed on the pound pull a bow requires, Clineschmidt said, but should deal with how fast or how far the particular hunter is able to shoot an arrow with his particular bow.

There should be some requirements on the type of arrows used and there probably should be some requirement about trail dogs. Chances of wounding, rather than killing bucks, are greater in archery.

Another feature of the archery hunting which may be in for a change is the deer tag itself. Some gun-hunters resent the fact the archers get 10-day seasons before each regular season, then often the unsuccessful archers hunt during the regular seasons with rifles.

There's been some sentiment expressed for a special deer tag, good only for archery. Some of the bowmen are believed to be agreeable to this.

Mainly, the archers feel they can't hunt at the same time as their gun-toting cousins. They must sneak quietly through the brush, keeping hidden from view, is not the safest pastime during the regular open hunting season.

While the archers are quite vocal when their rights are involved, there's quite a bit of opposition to their hunting as well. One special archery season was called off because it was felt the archers might spend months hunting and never kill the 100 deer provided for in the special hunt.

But archery, like most other sports, is on the upswing, with hundreds of new enthusiasts coming along every year. It's a pretty sure bet that some new regulations to bring the program into line with general good management will be adopted in the next year or two.

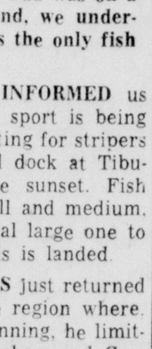
Hot Striper Sector Cools Off, Fish Spread Out Over Wide Area



STEVENS

Howdy, folks! As expected, the fast and fancy striper fishing in the Racoon Strait-Alcatraz sector slackened off considerably the past few days. We say "as expected." That's correct. We felt certain that when the tides returned to normal the vast schools of bass would scatter and some, if not all of them, would begin their annual upstream trek to the nuptial beds. Sure, we know there were minus tides over the weekend, but they were extremely mild, nothing like what we have had before. We didn't expect they could adversely affect fishing very much. The tides will be normal until Aug. 6 and during that time all or most of the fish that were hanging around waiting to get hooked in the locales mentioned above will have spread out over a wide area.

GENERALLY SPEAKING, bass fishing slowed down all over the past three days. Even trolling in the late evening in the upper San Pablo Bay slowed down quite a bit. May have been partly due to the rather strong winds in the late afternoons, but we believe it is because the fish are on the move. However Joe Nerviani of Joe's Launching at Santa Venetia Slough, with his brother, Albert, tried trolling at the mouth of the canal from 5 p.m. until 7 p.m. on Monday and, using pet spoons, took five stripers to 18 inches. Also released six undersized bass. Joe told us that only 10 bass came in on bait over the weekend, but one was a dandy of 20 pounds taken by Rudy Batista.

GRACE QUAN of China Camp was almost in tears as she reported fishing as "lousy," with only two fish brought in out of 17 boats fishing. "No fish around the Sisters; no fish caught trolling or on bait Where have they gone?" Grace wailed. We told her not to give up hope. The fish are around—but in different areas

On the opposite side of the bay, almost directly opposite China Camp, two hopefuls outboarded from Rodeo to the area near Point Pinole and returned to port with two limits of bass to 12 pounds.

NOT ONLY has bass fishing slowed down, salmon trolling also slackened off the past few days. Sid McMullen of Caruso's harbor at Sausalito reported Bill Davis and his boat the My 3, came in on Monday with 17 salmon to 18 pounds, but that was high boat by a very wide margin.

THERE IS one avid Marin angler who is still glowing with pride of his catch on Sunday. Tad Kuwatani of Mill Valley hooked, played and finally landed a huge 42-pound salmon. Tad was on a private boat and, we understand, that was the only fish taken.

McMULLEN INFORMED us that some high sport is being had by spin casting for stripers off the railroad dock at Tiburon just before sunset. Fish are mostly small and medium, but an occasional large one to 12 or 14 pounds is landed.

ADRIAN DIAS just returned from Greenville region where, for two days running, he limited out with rainbow and German brown trout. Rainbows ran from nine to 14 inches and the browns from one-and-a-half pounds to two-and-a-half pounds. Adrian used only worms as bait. He fished from a boat.

ONE TYPE of fishing continues prime. Deep sea rock-fishing is paying off in great shape out of Santa Cruz and is fair to good out of Princeton and Bodega Bay.

IDYLLIC SUMMER SCHOOL TO END

Novato's summer school, which has drawn about 500 high and elementary school students to daily classes, will end tomorrow, bringing to a close such idyllic scenes as this outdoor "study hall" with Cindy Klein (left) and Marianne Farris reading their lessons beneath the trees. An open house tonight from 7:30 to 9 o'clock will feature the work of instrumental music, art and crafts classes at Hill School. (Independent-Journal photo)

Best Jumpers Due Trampoline Trip

A boy and a girl who practice their rebound tumbling at the Bon Air Trampoline Center at Greenbrae will be among a group of American teenagers to demonstrate the sport in Berlin this fall.

The two-week exhibition will begin in Berlin on Sept. 13 under auspices of the United States Information Agency. All expenses will be paid by the government.

Albert Silver, owner of the Greenbrae center, announced that elimination trials will be held daily from 10 a.m. to noon. The center will choose two boys and two girls, between 12 and 18 years, before its Aug. 12 deadline. Final selection of one boy and one girl will be made by USIA, Silver said.

RIDE IN SIERRA

Two Marin Horses Entered In Contest

Two horses from the Tevis Land and Livestock Lake Ranch in West Marin, between Bolinas and Olema, will be among about 50 horses from all parts of the United States and two foreign countries competing in the second Tevis Cup 100-Mile One Day Ride on Aug. 6.

One will be ridden by Sandra Tevis of Marin and San Francisco, daughter of one of three donors of the cup. The other rider will be Ben Roark, foreman of the ranch.

The cup was put into competition last year by W. S. Tevis, owner of the ranch, and two brothers who live elsewhere in California. Initial winner was a man from Reno.

Entrants include famous polo and western ranch horses. From other countries come Erwin Arnisz, international polo team captain from Mexico, and Count Frederick von Lederbur of Austria.

The ride itself was originated years ago by the Western Trail Riders Assn. It follows the Western States Trail which crosses the Sierra Nevada between Lake Tahoe and Auburn, starting at 5 a.m. from Tahoe City. Winner will be first to cross a line at the Auburn Fair Grounds, probably soon after midnight.

Lincoln Mansfield last year set a record time of 19 hours 56 minutes. Extreme care is taken against shortcutting with all riders forced to keep to the marked trail at all times and be checked at inspection and control stations.

Visiting Baptist Says Russians Like Church

There are 500 standees for every service at a Baptist church in Leningrad, in "godless Russia," according to a Baptist educator visiting Marin this week.

Dr. Floyd M. Golden, president emeritus of Eastern New Mexico University at Portales, N. M., and vice chairman of the board of trusteees of Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary, is visiting the seminary campus at Strawberry Point.

Last year, he visited the Soviet Union to study its educational system. While there, he visited Baptist churches in Moscow, Leningrad and Kiev.

The Leningrad Baptist Church, he related, has seating capacity of about 400, but an additional 500 stand for services "jammed so solidly that they have to lock the doors."

There are about 350,000 Baptists in Russia, said Dr. Golden, the largest Protestant church group in that country. Churches are so well attended, he said, that people have to be told to remain at home so that others may attend the next service.

Old Airmail Pilots Being Sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wanted: Old airmail pilots, to fly the mails once again, low and slow.

They're needed to help celebrate the 40th anniversary of trans-continental airmail service, by reenacting the history-making New York-to-San Francisco flight next Sept. 8.

Her Patience Pays Off For Handicapped

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Thirty-five years ago, Mrs. Emerald Barman Arbogast, American Mother of 1960, was faced with a frightening dilemma:

Her sixth child was a Mongoloid.

She had two choices: put the child away, or keep him.

"People told me," 'get the child out of sight. Put him in an institution,'" says Mrs. Arbogast. "That was the way it was done then."

Mrs. Arbogast called her family together and let them vote—because the child would be their problem, too.

"He was born to this family," she says. "He is one of us. Are we going to accept the fact and meet it as a challenge?"

The family gave her a vote of confidence. And Mrs. Arbogast started on a pioneering venture in child therapy. The results of her decision:

Techniques developed by Mrs. Arbogast in caring for her own child are now in use throughout the nation.

And Mrs. Arbogast—now 71 and still active in care of what she calls "exceptional children"—was also honored as California's Mother of Year.

"I haven't done anything, really," says Mrs. Arbogast. "I've just done the task that was set before me."

When she started caring for her own son he could neither walk nor talk. She searched libraries for books on care of the Mongoloid child. There were none.

She started from the beginning, developing her own techniques. Some she borrowed from methods used in teaching Helen Keller. It required vast patience: teaching Grant to talk took 14 years.

She saw early that her son needed friends. She met Mrs. Allen McCoy, fighting a similar go-it-alone struggle for her son, Jerry. They established a small school which grew, in time, to Los Angeles' nationally-known Exceptional Children's Foundation.

"The Mongoloid child," explains Mrs. McCoy, "is an unfinished child. One whose brain is capable of learning, slowly.

"He is sensitive and easily confused. His lessons must be reduced to simplicity and require much patience in the teaching."

The keys to therapy, the mothers found, were these: love, understanding and discipline. Some of their alumni are now attending public schools as a result of therapy. All of them have learned to live happier lives.

And today the shelves are full of books on care for such children—many of them dealing with the Arbogast techniques, or those developed as a result of her work. Her endeavors, say some, have helped pull thinking about retarded children "out of the Middle Ages."

For parents who fear their children may be less than normal, Mrs. Arbogast has this advice:

"Find out as quickly as possible, seek aid—and accept the fact without dismay."

Former Illinois Couple Finds Life In Mill Valley Exciting

Mr. and Mrs. W. Guy Shearer, who moved to Mill Valley recently from Evanston, Ill., are finding life in Marin County a new experience.

Having caught the do-it-yourself virus so prevalent in Mill Valley, the Shearers are busily engaged in remodeling their home at 216 Molino Avenue. They have named the place "Deer Path" because of the many deer that wander into their yard mornings and evenings.

Shearer finds the beautiful animals a challenging subject for photography, and his wife is becoming a garden enthusiast. A potential clash of hobbies is inherent in this situation, especially if there are any delectable roses in the garden.

Shearer was associated for a number of years with the McGuire and Orr real estate firm of Evanston and expects to continue in the real estate business in Marin.

The Shearers were persuaded to come to Mill Valley by their daughter, Mrs. Donald Raggio, and her husband and four children, Nancy, Barbara, Guy and Pattie. The Raggios came to Mill Valley from Glenview, Ill., three years ago when Raggio was sent by the Butterick Publishing Co. to open an office in San Francisco.

Shoe Advice

LONDON (UPI) — Children's shoes are so designed that when correctly fitted at the time of purchase they will allow unrestricted growth for four to six months, says Dr. Catharine Hollman, assistant medical officer of Middlesex County Council.

Dr. Hollman, reporting in the British Medical Journal, also said that the universal habit of keeping the children's new shoes for dress wear throughout a 12-month period isn't a good idea. They should wear their new shoes straight-away—and discard them after four months for another pair, she said.

Help For Menu Planning Just A Dial Away

HACKENSACK, N.J. (AP) — "Tip-O-Phone," set up by the Bergen County Agrcultural Extension Service, has made menu planning easier for the harried housewife.

All she has to do is dial a telephone number to get the service's bi-weekly food and marketing message, which includes shopping information and menu suggestions.

The Service says some 500 calls each week attest to the success of the project, the only one of its kind in New Jersey.

And as a further benefit, the organization provides gardening information in springtime by using the same type of tape-recorded message.

Longer Skirts Characterize Panhellenic Fashion Show

A blueprint of fall fashions, unfolded before a capacity audience at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross yesterday, revealed primarily that skirts will be several inches longer than current knee high style, and that the new clothes follow plans and specifications indicated in this summer's trends.

The Panhellenic fashion show-luncheon, second in the 14th annual Northgate Group summer series, featured clothes "for the woman with flair" from a shop in Sausalito.

No fashion cliches were shown, nothing trite was included in an interesting collection described by attractive Miss Alys Swan, a professional actress and singer.

Most of the costumes shown were directed to Marin's modern woman whose busy life requires interchangeable fashions to take her anywhere at any time. With this need in mind, the young men who run the unique shop featured the costume look or ensemble.

Models for the day were attractive young members from each of the sorority groups represented in the Marin Panhellenic Association.

MANY KNITS

Knit costumes, modified shirtwaist frocks, and smart travel clothes were modeled by Mrs. Robert Oates, a Delta Zeta; by Mrs. Joseph Baraish, Kappa Kappa Gamma; and Mrs. William G. Morrisey III, Alpha Omicron Pi; Mrs. Eric Wilkinson, Kappa Delta; and Mrs. Douglas Mitchell, Zeta Tau Alpha.

The plaid look for fall was traced in the blue print of fashions from midsummer cottons. Mrs. John G. Herrmann, a Pi Beta Phi looked cool and relaxed in a black and white plaid cotton enhanced by a snowy white necklace. Checks were "checked out for the season" in a suit for the fall wardrobe worn by Mrs. Richard Reese, a Delta Gamma. The charming orange and black suit of wool with its fringe collar and belted style could be worn anywhere, anytime.

Sheaths came in for special attention at the show, with many pretty styles shown for day and nighttime.

Mrs. James Stitt, an Alpha Delta Pi, was, to coin a phrase, "a stunning picture" in a basic black wool sheath worn with large black jewelry.

Also sheathed to perfection was Mrs. Richard France, an Alpha Gamma Delta. Her costume included a knit stole in the same putty or earth tones of her dress.

Mrs. William McGregor, an Alpha Chi Omega, showed how smart a year round cotton sheath can be when worn with outstanding beige necklace and earrings. Mrs. K. R. Moynihan, Kappa Alpha Theta, joined the group in sheaths wearing a jeweltone blue mohair Italian import.

Although it is not news to Marin women who have realized it for years, the show emphasized the continuing importance of white in any and all seasons.

Mrs. Kimball Palm, a Phi Mu represented understated elegance in a white pleated cotton dress cut with a sheath effect and a blouson bodice.

In a group of casual clothes to relax in, Mrs. William Findeisen, a Gamma Phi Beta, showed a royal blue jumper suit with its sunback covered by a longish versatile jacket. A two-piece casual adventure in gracious living on the patio was named "gin and tunic" and obviously indicated the trend towards tunics in fall fashions. Other unusual easy-to-wear clothes included a full fully-lined hemp skirt with large burlap pockets, worn with a sleeveless blouse.

NOVEL SKIRT

Another novel skirt was the plaid one worn with a rum color silk blouse by Mrs. C. West Curley, an Alpha Phi. Still another skirt and blouse hit was worn by Mrs. Robert Hosmer, a Sigma Kappa. Her entry in a mohair hand knit Italian skirt and Swedish blouse worn with a tremendous necklace was well received.

The collection included dramatic tweeds, poi de sois gowns with bows and panels, many black frocks and just as many prints, knits and leathers, exciting jewelry and other accessories, all for the Marin woman "with a flair."

Next Wednesday's luncheon and fashion show will be sponsored by the Social Service Auxiliary of Marin County with another Sausalito shop showing its boutique collection of world-wide fashions.

Reservations, for the event which is open to the public may be made by phoning the Marin Art and Garden Center, Ross.

An added social event will take place at next week's luncheon when a large party will be given for Mrs. Hammond E. Wright of San Anselmo, longtime coordinator of the Art and Garden Center who recently resigned the post to travel with her husband.

MILL VALLEY artist Elsie Lower Pomeroy was photographed at the Presidio Officers' Club in San Francisco when she was a guest artist at an officers' wives luncheon attended by about 300 guests. Theme and decor was "Paris in the Spring." Mrs. Pomeroy painted and had a one-man show of her pictures to suggest the famous Parisian sidewalk cafes with their art exhibits.

More Recognition Comes To MV Artist, Elsie Lower Pomeroy

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

Mill Valley artist Elsie Lower Pomeroy has just received word that her watercolor entitled "Muir Woods" has been chosen as the central feature in decor of the main reception room in the Hockwald Company's large, new general office, fatcory and warehouse in Crocker Industrial Park at Brisbane, Calif.

Selection of the work by architect Robert M. Blunk, A.I.A., is the latest recognition achieved by Mrs. Pomeroy in a long career as a professional artist.

A native of Pennsylvania, she spent most of her life in Washington, D. C., before she and her late husband, Carl Stone Pomeroy, moved to Riverside, Calif. and lived there for 20 years.

The artist studied at the Corcoran School of Art in Washington, D. C. and with Millard Sheets at Scripps College. She also studied with Phil Dike and Eliot O'Hara.

She was a botanical artist for the U. S. Department of Agriculture when she met her husband, a scientist with the department.

CITRUS GROVES

When he was transferred to Riverside on a project in connection with fruit improvement, Mrs. Pomeroy became known there for her paintings of the citrus groves in Southern California and won prizes for them. She also was director of children's art groups there.

Two daughters were born in Riverside, Mrs. Harry Smith of Mill Valley and Mrs. George Johnston of Alexandria, Va. There are now five grandchildren.

When her younger daughter was about 14, Mrs. Pomeroy took a civil service examination for botanical artist, passing first for the state of California and second for the District of Columbia. She returned to Washington for about six months, long enough to help put out a bulletin for the U. S. Forest Service.

When her husband retired and they moved to Mill Valley in 1944, she became known for her watercolors and oils, and as a teacher, principally as instructor in the adult education program of Tamalpais High School for the past 12 years.

In Southern California she was a member of the California Water Color Society and Fine Arts Guild of San Diego. On moving to Marin she joined the Marin Society of Artists, San Francisco Women Painters and the San Francisco Art Associatiton.

One of her oils, "Mountain Magic," has been in the art bank of the San Francisco Art Association for two years, and another, "Flight and Fantasy," was chosen this year. Each appeared in the association's annual catalogue.

ONE-MAN SHOWS

She has exhibited in many group and several one-man shows in New York, Washington, D. C., Chicago, San Francisco and Los Angeles and has won awards for her entries with the Art League in Washington, D. C., the California Water Color Society in Los Angeles, the Butler Art Institute in Youngstown, Ohio, the Riverside Fine Arts Gallery and the Marin Society of Artists.

As for her style, she does both abstract and representational painting, mostly landscapes, and is a self-confessed "experimenter—always trying different methods."

The artist does not feel she has a definite style nor that a unique style is even desirable.

Teenager Banks On The Ballads

By VIVIAN BROWN

Ballad singing is big business, and a very profitable one. That's why Dennis Day Hughey of Mayo, S.C., has tossed his guitar into the gold mine.

"Heck, I've been singin' since I learned to talk," says the 18-year-old. "Mom taught me spirituals, and all us children were playing piano, strummin', singing—rock 'n roll, ballads, folk music. It'll be no effort if I make the grade.

Dennis is in New York as one of the semi-finalists in a talent contest conducted through Hi-Fi clubs around the country. The winner receives cash, an audition with a recording company, and appears on a nationwide television program.

The handsome teen-ager, who just graduated from high school says he has always loved a guitar but started out with a ukelele which he persuaded his dad to buy him.

"I got interested in the guitar listening to Chet Atkins and Merle Travis, whom I consider the best in the business. I think they're better than Elvis with the guitar."

Dennis isn't knocking Elvis. He likes him. When it comes to singing he'll take Elvis, Pat Boone and Ricky Nelson. Chet Atkins doesn't sing. Matter of fact, he says, they all have their own specialties.

"I think Pat Boone is the best singer. He has better quality to his voice, and wonderful deep tones. Elvis has a better beat, I think. And I like Ricky's soft style. It's different," he says.

Dennis copied his guitar style from Atkins, he says. "He was the originator, you might say, of the ballad-folk type of entertainment. I don't know how to describe it. Maybe 'cause it's my style of music, I prefer it. It's sure the prettiest, though, and greatest."

Dennis hopes to go into show business, but if he fails he has his future laid out.

"If I don't click, then I'll go home and probably go to work at a textile place, a cotton mill maybe, and go to business school. I'll study to be a business accountant."

But don't get the impression Dennis is a pessimist.

"I think I'm goin' to do alright," he grins. I've been told that I'm a cross between George Hamilton IV, and Ricky Nelson, and Im often compared to Elvis. It's good to see that they compare me with the best."

This Marinade Imparts Flavor To Fish Fillets

After the family fishermen havec leaned and split that fresh catch into steaks or filets, it is up to the homemaker to do it justice when it appears on the dinner table.

Because of the tenderness and delicate flavor of most freshly caught fish, seldom is it necessary to do more than broil or pan broil the finny food quickly on an outdoor grill or in the kitchen range broiler with a coating of seasoned olive oil or butter.

If you wish to hold fresh fish overnight or for several hours in the refrigerator, capture its good flavor with this zesty marinade.

Cover fish steaks or fillets with a mixture of ¼ cup lemon juice, ½ cup olive oil, a few onion slices, ½ cup sliced anchovy olives, salt and pepper. Place in refrigerator until ready to cook. Drain marinade from fish and place fish on grill or broiler rack. Cook about five minutes. Turn fish with spatula, sprinkle onion slices and olives from marinade on top and continue cooking about five minutes longer, or just until fish flakes easily.

Red Cross Gray Ladies Luncheon

Hostesses at the annual Red Cross Gray Lady luncheon held recently at the chapter in San Rafael were Mesdames Albert McNamara, Lucas Valley chairman; Vern Macfarland, Sonoma chairman; Betty Hemingway, Imola chairman; Robert Batty, over-all chairman of Gray Ladies for the Marin chapter, and Miss Alice McCormick, veterans' home chairman.

The affair offered an opportunity for all Marin Gray Ladies to meet and exchange information about their individual services, their problems and activities.

Mrs. Donald Buttner, recruitment chairman for Red Cross, spoke concerning the need for volunteers in the motor corps as well as in the Gray Lady program, and pointed out that many services being performed during the summer months by Junior Red Cross volunteers will have to be taken over by adults when the school year starts.

B'nai B'rith Women Present Vocational Guidance Kit

Citizenship and Civic Affairs, assisting in local civic agencies, is a little known but important phase of B'nai B'rith Women, and the local Marin chapter has devoted much time to these efforts.

A vocational guidance kit was purchased by the chapter and presented at their June meeting to the Tamalpais Union High School District for use by its guidance counselors. The presentation was made by the vocational guidance chairman, Mrs. Sam Goldbaum, who also serves as president of the Ross Valley Council of Parents and Teachers.

The kit is recognized by vocational guidance experts as one of the finest available to high school advisors. Included in the kit are descriptions of jobs and professions in every possible field with backgrounds on the training needed, the demand for personnel, and innumerable suggestions for jobs.

B'nai B'rith members have also served the Marin community in their support of the "Well Baby Clinic" of the Child Health Conference under the Marin County Health Department. Mrs. Carl Schwartz was awarded a blue ribbon pin for the many hours she has helped in the clinic. Also honored by the conference were Mesdames Merton Jacobs, Cecil Ormond, Sidney Loeb, Walter Strauss, Ell Faure, and Sam Margoliash.

Marin B'nai B'rith women have worked in close cooperation with many other local organizations including the Red Cross, American Cancer Society, Muscular Dystrophy, and the Senior Citizens.

Dior House Throws Bombshell, Hemlines Show Most Of Knee

By GAY PAULEY

PARIS (UPI) — The House of Christian Dior today erased the natural waistline, minimized the bust and bucked the rest of the Paris fashion tide with hemlines showing most of the knee.

The shapelessness of waistline was the most drastic change.

The so-called waist settled down anywhere from the upper hip bone to mid-thigh, its final resting place usually marked by shallow gathering in the skirts. These, the only curves in the collection, broke the severe, unfitted line with gentle cup shapes called "Corolla."

Another way to describe the convex curves of the skirts: They were the shape of parentheses or what some designers call the pumpkin.

The bust looked small and flat because of the tubular silhouette and the natural smallness of the French models.

Dior kept daytime hemlines at last year's knee level but almost every other Paris designer dropped them one or two inches this season to cover the knees entirely.

"Promise of freedom, felt for several seasons, becomes a reality," said the Dior press release. "Inner construction has gone . . . fashion bases itself on softness in fabric, a fluid cut . . . dresses no longer encase the wearer, but the body comes alive within . . .

"The silhouette is lengthened to its utmost," said the firm. "Fabrics glide over the body."

The show, always playing to a packed house of restless, nail-chewing fashion editors, drew Doris Duke, the tobacco hearess.

Dior's collection came closer, if there were any indications of a revival, to some of the short-skirted numbers from the 1920s — except for those pumpkin skirts.

One model's straight black hair was pulled forward on her cheeks a la flapper days. All she needed was a spit curl to look like the vamp of old.

But in general, hair was piled high and tucked completely under dome and behive-shaped hats.

Designer St. Laurent marked the low slung waistline with skinny drawstring belts of the same fabric as dress or coat; with attached leather belts; with built-in sashes and bows; or just a double seam where the skirt joined.

As usual at Dior, there were some exceptions to the waist-away look. Several of his "infantaz" dresses for late day and evening had wide cummerbunds worn immediately under the bosom.

The jacket over the dress was Dior's favorite costume — with jackets unfitted and the skirts with the usual low-placed gathers. Several of the jackets came to mid-thigh. Sleeves were omitted in most daytime wools.

If the French government sticks to its present plans, this will be the last collection designed by St. Laurent for a while.

The young successor to the late Christian Dior is slated to be drafted for anything up to 27 months in the army sometime this fall.

Although the House of Dior has formally lamented that the absence of its designer will be a serious loss, a spokesman said today that St. Laurent did not plan to ask for an additional deferment of his military service.

Most of the week's fall and winter style premiere were featured by one or two-inch descent in hemlines.

Up to the Dior showing, this was how Paris saw women in the months ahead.

Take the general silhouette. There was an immense amount of the 1930s—the bias cut, the wrap-around coats, the high-wrapped fur collars on coats and suit, the fur-bordered hems, the helmet hats, the uncurled and cropped hairdos.

There was even the pencilled-on artificial arch of the eyebrows which were part and parcel of the Jean Harlow, Carole Lombard and Marlene Dietrich Heyday in Hollywood.

In the first-half of the week-long series of shows by the Chambre syndicate de La Couture Parisienne (Union of Parisian Dress Designers) I saw just about everything.

There has been some chemise, much of the princess moulding the figure gently through the bust and waist, tubes which don't do much except hang there, slim skirts, gathered skirts, flared skirts, tunics, capes both short and street length, and so much fur trim the trappers can afford Paris gowns for their wives this fall.

AAUW Members Preparing Cook Book Publication

Mrs. Charles A. Smith and her committee are "knee deep" in recipes as they prepare for publication of the second volume of the American Association of University Women Mill Valley branch's "Out of This World" cook book. The first volume issued in 1958 was a complete sellout.

Mrs. Smith reports volume two will have the same format as the earlier edition. That is, the recipes will be printed on 2"x5" cards held together with rings for easy handling.

Those who were unable to buy the earlier book will be pleased to hear that the plans are to include some of the most pouular recipes from the first volume along with many tempting new favorites the members are contributing.

Among those helping Mrs. Smith, ways and means chairman, with preparations for "Out of This World, Volume 2" are Mesdames E. Eugene Spitler, Thomas W. Baker, Ross S. Shade and Fred F. Fuller.

Mrs. Alfred F. Kerr is in charge of publicity, and art work will be handled by the branch art section headed by Mrs. R. S. O'Conner.

Army Creates Another Air Defense Area

Creation of a Seventh Region of the Army Air Defense Command in the Pacific Northwest was announced yesterday at ceremonies at McChord Air Force Base, Wash., headquarters of the new region.

The Seventh Region replaces the 31st Artillery Brigade, which has been inactivated, as the senior command for Army antiaircrafts units in the Pacific Northwest.

It will extend into five states, including the northern portion of California, western and northeastern Oregon, northern Idaho, northeastern tip of Montana and all of Washington.

At Fort Baker the Sixth Region will control Army Air Defense in central and southern California, Nevada, southeastern Oregon, southwestern Idaho, western Utah, most of Arizona and the southwestern tip of New Mexico.

Marin's Boy Scouts Have Trouble, Fun

One of the troubles came when Jack L. Blaine of San Rafael, scoutmaster of Marin Jamboree Troop 51, was stricken with an infection in his left leg. He spent three days in an Army hospital, then returned home, where he told today some of the experiences of the 80 Marin boys at the jamboree.

The trip to Clorado Springs wasn't exactly a lark, according to Blaine. The first day out, the train bearing the jamboree contingent was delayed four hours at Oroville by a broken coupling. And the heat was 108 degrees.

At Salt Lake City, the boys were kept aboard the train for one and one-half hours after arrival. They missed breakfast.

Once the jamboree got started, however, the fun—and honors—repaid the troubles, Blaine said.

The 80 Marin boys were among 400 Scouts chosen as honor guard for opening ceremonies at the jamborees' Avenuc of Flags. Troop 51's musical group played at the first section campfire. Members were Robert Lesoine of Ross, Gordon Linden and David Blaine of San Rafael and Harry Herr of Mill Valley.

The largest lake in the world covers an area of 152,240 square miles. It is the Caspian Sea.

THANK YOU MARIN COUNTY

FROM THE PAST—Children pause before the square in Rothenburg, Germany — the ancient town's most photographed spot. Last year 657,000 tourists visited Rothenburg, which has changed little in the last several hundred years.

AVOIDS PROGRESS

Middle Ages Town Attracts Tourists

ROTHENBURG OB DER TAUBER, Germany (AP) — This ancient walled town is avoiding progress as if it were the devil himself.

For Rothenburg, progress would spell disaster. In its present state, it is considered by many to be Europe's most perfect specimen of a town from the Middle Ages.

Last year, 657,000 tourists clattered over the town's cobblestone streets viewing the qaint houses, churches, hotels and shops — many of which were built before Columbus discovered America.

It hasn't been easy to keep the town behind the times. Recently some citizens suggested that traffic lights be placed at five wall gates which are big enough to admit motor vehicles.

But the town fathers quickly rejected the idea, figuring it better to have a few dented fenders than to blemish Rothenburg's museum-like charm.

Two gasoline stations have somehow crept inside the walls and several taverns have been converted into noisy affairs that cater to American soldiers. The town leaders have been successful in keeping neon signs out, though.

"We are trying to have the town declared a national monument," says Gustav Luettgens, the town's director of tourism. "This means we could get financial aid for preserving everything just as it is. We hope to make a living museum out of the town."

How did Rothenburg slip through the centuries largely untouched? There are three major reasons.

The first came during the 1600s, when Germany was torn by the Thirty Years War. Rothenburg was Protestant under the protection of Sweden's King Gustavus Adolphus and his armies. Catholic forces under the leadership of Germany's Field Marshal Count Czerklas Tilly captured the town in October, 1631, after a bitter siege.

At a surrender ceremony, citizens of Rothenburg got Tilly intoxicated with the help of a large goblet that contained more than three liters of wine.

The goblet so entranced Tilly that he offered to save Rothenburg from further destruction if a citizen could empty it without stopping for breath. Up stepped the mayor of Rothenburg, a well practiced drinker named Nusch. He emptied the goblet without blinking an eye and Rothenburg was saved.

Once a year citizens of Rothenburg don medieval dress and reenact Tilly's storming of the town and the mayor's heroic feat.

Rothenburg's antiquity was saved again in the middle 1800s. Railroads were being built in Germany, but the town council refused to allow any line to come near Rothenburg. Years later a spur line was built, but it was too late. Other towns had such a head start on Rothenburg that it just stayed asleep inside its walls.

Then came World War II. A British air raid on Easter Sunday in March, 1945, destroyed a portion of the town. American troops prepared to shell the town, prior to storming it.

But John J. McCloy, U.S. assistant secretary of war, happened to be touring the front lines and ordered that Rothenburg be spared — if possible. The next day the Germans cooperated and hoisted the white flag of surrender. Rothenburg was again saved for history.

Seminary President Tells Of Latin Tour

Dr. Harold K. Graves, president of the Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary, was back to the quiet of the seminary's Strawberry Point campus today after a Latin American tour during which he found himself under martial law in two countries.

Dr. and Mrs. Graves went to Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, to attend the world quinquennial congress of the Baptist World Alliance.

In Caracas, Venezuela, Dr. Graves and 124 other Baptists en route to Rio were held up four days when martial law was invoked after an assassination attempt on President Romulo Bettencourt.

In Guatemala City, on the trip home from the congress, things were even more tense when the city was placed under martial law "because of terrorist campaigns the Communists had put on." Dr. Graves said a hand grenade was set off in a theater one day, and on the day he left, the post office was demolished by terrorists.

Dr. Graves was one of 2,836 Baptists visiting the congress from North America. Also attending from Marin County were Dr. and Mrs. L. A. Brown and Dr. and Mrs. G. S. Dobbins, both men are on the seminary faculty. Mrs. Leola Marshall attended the congress as a delegate of the Tiburon Boulevard Baptist Church in Tiburon.

The seminary president said Mrs. Marshall, he and his wife were lucky enough to be of the five out of 17 who drews lots allowing them to catch the first plane from Caracas to Rio after the ban on travel was lifted. Others had to wait longer.

In Caracas, Dr. Graves said, they made unsuccessful efforts to get out of Venezuela while the borders were closed. They contacted the United States embassy, the American Bible Assn. and the military, and wired Sen. Robert S. Kerr of Oklahoma. Still they were not allowed to leave until all but one of the men allegedly involved in the plot on President Bettencourt's life were captured.

Dr. Graves said the Rio congress was "quite tremendous," with some 14,000 registered delegates from 85 countries. The congress was climaxed when Baptist evangelist Billy Graham led a mass meeting.

Dr. and Mrs. Graves, with 15 other Baptists, toured from Rio to Asuncion, Paraguay; Buenos Aires; Santiago, Chile; La Paz, Bolivia; Lima, Peru; Bogota and Barranquilla, Columbia; Guatemala City and Mexico City. En route they visited various Baptist schools, hospitals and missions.

One of his main impressions was of "fences and bars" in South America, he said. "Everything has a fence around it and every home has bars on it—for protection."

His wife became ill at La Paz, where the altitude is 13,400 feet at the airport, and was taken to a hospital.

Dr. Graves said the architecture in South America is impressive: much modern architecture, lots of poured concrete, aluminum, colors and mosaics.

On the trip, he said, "I found no anti-American feeling."

"Across language barriers," he added, "the feeling of interest is there for our Baptist Christians in South America. Even though they couldn't understand our language, they spoke it with their eyes and their handsclasps that we were together in building a world of peace,

Nurse's Vacation Like A Fireman's

Pg. 22—NURSE'S k230

Surgical nurse Sally Dade has decided that work at San Rafael General Hospital was never as rigorous as her three-week vacation.

Back to the comparative quiet of the hospital's surgery room this week, Mrs. Dade still feels slightly dazed by a vacation that was supposed to be "away from it all."

Out in a wilderness area of Idaho, she was called on to take care of a child sick with Rocky Mountain spotted fever, an air crash victim, a man who got a fish hook in his ear, a man with a gunshot wound and a child who caught her hand in an electric wringer.

She and her husband, Rupert, and 17-year-old daughter, Flora, had driven to Boise, Ida., and flown from there to a guest ranch on Pistol Creek, about 90 minutes flying time into the wilderness area.

The first day, Mrs. Dade was asked to look at a sick child. She thought the illness was Rocky Mountain spotted fever. Mrs. Dade cared for the child until a doctor arrived, who then diagnosed the illness as she had suspected. The child was flown out to a hospital.

The same day a private plane crashed four miles away and the 44-year-old surgical nurse was the only medical person within range. With a guide and several others, she rode horseback along a narrow ledge overlooking a river canyon to the scene of the wreck.

Mrs. Dade had only a small first aid kit. She had small pine trees cut down to get splints and larger trees for a stretcher. She stayed until a doctor arrived about 10 o'clock that night, then rode home alone along the rim of the canyon.

A helicopter came in to pick up the victim, although trees had to be cleared first to allow it to land.

The next day Mrs. Dade was called on to remove a fish hook from a man's ear.

Later, during an eight-day trip down the rapids of the Salmon River in a rubber boat, one of the men in the party was wounded in the nose by a ricocheting pistol shot. Mrs. Dade treated and bandaged the man's wound.

After returning from the fishing trip, Mrs. Dade was asked to take care of a child who got her hand caught in a wringer.

Oh, yes, the fishing was good, too, she added.

Water-Cooled Engine

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—When another motorist drove alongside Wallace Horn Jr. and told him his car engine, located in the rear, was afire, Horn did the best thing he could think of under the circumstances.

He backed the small foreign car down an embankment into a stream of water.

Warning To Teenage Motorists: Your Driving Record Is Poor

Do you have a teenage boy who drives? I'm writing to him today. You might clip this column and put it where he'll see it.

Son, will you be driving tonight? Will you use the family car, or do you have your own jalopy? Millions of young men will be on the highways tonight. You'll move faster and go farther than any other teenagers in the world.

Are your folks doubtful about your driving? Probably. Most parents are. Your father and mother are proud of you. They love you and want you to live a long, successful life. They know you could be snuffed out before morning. They know that some boys like you will die tonight. Will die in pools of blood, on dirty strips of paving. Will die from unnecessary accidents. Of course they are apprehensive.

How cautious are you? Did you know that teenage boys have a driving record which is at least five times as bad as their parents'? Person for person, boys of your age have five times the smash-ups. You are the most dangerous drivers on the roads. Does that make you pause? I hope so.

The trouble is you're likely to be impetuous. You may make quick, deadly decisions without considering the consequences. Your reaction time is fast. You can get into and out of many scrapes. But you can't drive recklessly forever without trouble. Eventually the boys who take chances have crashes. All of them do.

So? Be a careful driver. Don't race with your friends. Cultivate a reputation for caution. You'll save lives, including your own.

V.M.

(A) No. Most boys buy their own gas and oil. You might help him get a job. Then he could buy gas and still have some spending money.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Youngsters Plan To Sell Summer Program Items

A bargain day sale will start at 9 a.m. tomorrow at the Marin City gymnasium to sell items made by youngsters in the summer recreation program. The program is sponsored by the Marin City Community Services District.

Money realized from the sale will be used in the program, according to Mrs. Juanita Cobb, secretary. Among the items which have been made by the 135 youngsters are mosaic ash trays, towels, waste paper baskets, key rings, jewelry boxes, candles, place mats, wall designs, hot pads and bird houses.

The sale will last, Mrs. Cobb said, until all articles are sold.

The program, under direction of Mrs. Santafe Moses and 26 teen-age assistants, started July 5 and will continue until Aug. 30. Youngsters still wishing to join may do so.

Legionnaires To Burn Mortgage In Mill Valley

Mill Valley American Legion post 284 will burn its mortgage to celebrate a debt-free Legion Hall on Sept. 24, post commander Ross H. Benson announced today.

Holders of $2,725 in building bonds issued in 1948 and 1949 by the post to finance completion of the hall, are to be repaid in person at the dinner meeting, Benson said. Non-interest bearing "baby bonds" in $25 denominations were sold to Mill Valley citizens, many of them not legionnaires, to pay for the building materials and fixtures required to complete the project. All labor on the hall was donated.

Owners of the baby bonds unable to attend the dinner have been notified to mail their bonds to Martin Jukich, post adjutant, for redemption. Approximately $6,000 in building bonds were issued originally, Benson said.

Funds to repay the bank mortgages totalling about $5,700 and to redeem the building bonds, he continued, are being received from the sale of land at Miller Avenue and Valley Circle which adjoins the hall.

The hall is now being remodeled.

Pacific Gas and Electric Co. plans to start construction of a Mill Valley office adjoining the Legion Hall in about two weeks, according to Benson.

Remodeling of the hall will consist of tearing off the present small entrance porch, building a stone firewall to separate the Legion and P.G.&E. buildings, and installation of a new front entrance to the hall.

Magazine Features San Rafael House

The hillside house of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Luchetti at 328 Fairhills Drive, San Rafael, is featured in the July issue of Architectural Record.

Built on a steep hillside site, the house follows the land contours. Most rooms have a view and a large eucalyptus grove shades them from the hot West sun. The house has a fir frame, exterior walls of stucco and redwood siding. Interiors are plasterboard, with floors of cork.

The Luchetti house was designed by architect Henry Hill and associate architect John W. Kruse. The contractor was McKinnon & Gee; heating engineer; H. Gilman Smith; and landscape architects, Eckbo, Dean & Williams.

MARIN BUSINESS And INDUSTRY

(A Thrice-Weekly Column)

By HARRY CRAFT

Real Estate Offices May Close Sundays, Make Appointments Only

More Marin County real estate offices may close on Sundays. Broker members of the Marin County Real Estate Board are looking with some favor upon a six-day schedule as a recommended although voluntary procedure to be followed uniformly throughout the county.

Brokers and their salesmen would still arrange appointments when it is necessary, but many feel that the amount of new business transacted on a Sunday does not justify offices remaining open throughout the day. Most Sausalito offices have already adopted this procedure; other sections of the county may soon follow.

ASSOCIATED HOME BUILDERS, Inc. of San Francisco, in conjunction with the National Assn. of Homebuilding and the American Institute of Architects, is sponsoring a "design clinic" at Stanford University Aug. 16 to 19. It is the first clinic of its kind to be held in Western America.

Emphasis will be on the practical effects of design in creating markets and building houses.

Subjects covered will embrace fundamentals design and its relationship to merchandising, application of basic principles to residential design, a critical analysis of houses, a cost analysis of prize winning designs, the effects of new materials and structural forms on design, and planning the individual areas of the house. Eight workshop sessions are offered.

Complete program information may be secured from the Marin County branch of Associated Home Builders, 819 A Street, San Rafael.

INDIVIDUAL INVESTORS are now eligible to acquire FHA mortgages previously limited to lending institutions. New regulations permit them to purchase mortgages on one out of four family dwellings provided that mortgages are originated and served by an approved mortgagee. Mortgages may be on new or existing homes.

Although immediate participation by investors is expected to be limited, it is felt that the regulation will become a substantial factor in FHA financing as they become more familiar with it.

NEW FORDS and Falcons will go on sale Sept. 29 . . . New Larks are expected to incorporate only minor changes in styling but six cylinder models will have a more powerful overhead valve engine. Restyled 1962 models may be introduced in mid-1961 . . . Tempest, upcoming compact car of Pontiac Division will have a four cylinder engine, four-wheel independent suspension and flexible drive shaft . . . Major style changes are expected in 1961 Ramblers . . .

Volkswagens and Renaults continue to gain in sales but most other foreign makes are lagging. In California, sales are off as much as 41 per cent.

HONESTY is the best insurance policy, particularly if it's for $50,000. One applicant in filling out the usual form for life insurance coverage came to the space requiring designation of the benificiary. After some hesitation he wrote down his wife's name.

On the line calling for the "Relationship of beneficiary to insured" the reason for his hesitancy was explained with this bit of domestic candor:

"Strained."

Area Leaders Appointed By County GOP

Six Marin County Republicans were appointed district chairmen of the Marin County Republican Central Committee Tuesday night by David Winslow of Tiburon, committee chairman.

They are Bruce B. Bales of San Rafael for District 1; William H. MacKay of San Rafael and Patrick W. Pollock of San Anselmo, District 2; William Scrimgeour of Mill Valley District 3; Richard H. Grant of Inverness Park, District 4, and Edwin Grundstrom of Novato, District 5.

The committee decided to establish campaign headquarters in Novato Sept. 1. Other district headquarters are to be set up in San Rafael, Mill Valley, San Anselmo and Sausalito, with separate county headquarters in San Rafael for the presidential ticket.

Russ Lauterwasser of Larkspur has resigned from the committee.

Four associate members were announced by Winslow as follows: Philip Crane Jr., chairman of the Marin Republican Council; Frank Myer, president of the Shoreline Highway Assn.; Mrs. Matt A. Graham, president of the Marin Federation of Republican Women, and Mrs. William V. Lynch, president of Pro-America.

William T. Bagley, assembly nominee for the Marin-Sonoma Seventh District, told the committee that a recent Santa Rosa meeting had brought a p[illegible] of $20,000 to "beat Bagley." He asked the committee for financial aid against this attack.

Public School Book Contracts Approved

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Atty. Gen. Stanley Mosk yesterday approved two out of three proposed contracts for private printing of reading books for California's public schools.

The third contract was promptly changed by the publisher to meet the attorney general's objections. It was expected to be approved as amended.

State Finance Director John Carr said he will sign the contracts when they reach his desk.

Except for one obstacle, that seems to end the textbook controversy which started last March when the State Board of Education approved purchase of privately-printed textbooks for the first time in 29 years.

That obstacle is a threatened taxpayer's suit seeking to block purchase of the privately-printed texts. It was being readied by Sacramento attorney Thomas W. Martin, former state liquor director, representing some employes of the State Printting Plant.

Martin contends that the purchase price of the books exceeds the Legislature's limit of 10 per cent over the cost of state printing. This is so, he contends, because the State Finance Department overestimated the cost of state printing.

However, Atty. Gen. Mosk says the contracts fall within the 10 per cent limit.

The two approved contracts are with Ginn & Co. for 2,603,000 readers for grades one through six for $2,721,638, and 487,000 supplementary texts for $514,332; and with American Book Co. for 339,000 supplementary readers at $621,515.

The rejected contract was with Allyn and Bacon, Inc. for 2,603,000 basic readers for grades one through six, at $2,715,856. Superintendent of Public Instruction Roy Simpson said Allyn and Bacon agreed to eliminate a price escalator clause objected to by the attorney general.

Almonte Passes $12,680 Budget

The Almonte Sanitary District board Monday night approved its 1960-61 final budget of $12,680, an increase of $1,845 over last year.

The increase, according to Frank Moncrief, is due to increased payments to Mill Valley for services since the city's new treatment plant was built. Moncrief said $1,400 is for capital outlay improvements.

The budget will call for a tax rate of 40 cents per $100 assessed valuation, the same as for the past two years, he said. The sewer service fee will remain the same as last year.

Citizens Of This British Colony Subject To Argentine Army Duty

PORT STANLEY, Falkland Islands (UPI) — Britain's southernmost crown colony is a unique welfare state whose citizens dig their own fuel, blacklist their drunks and are liable —if caught—to military service in the Argentine army.

These isolated islands lie just around the Atlantic corner of Cape Horn in a forgotten part of the world once famous when the windjammers plied the horn.

The 2,300 Falkland islanders have one of the lowest living costs of any western country, no external air service, television or newspapers. The anchored and grounded hulls of storm-damaged sailing vessels still are used as warehouses.

Although occupied by the British for 127 years, the Falklands are also claimed by Argentina, whose 25-man garrison was forced to leave in 1833 when a British naval squadron took possession of the two main islands.

The French and Americans also figured in the early history of the Falklands. Viscomte de Bougainville established a French settlement here in 1764, but turned it over to the Spanish three years later. The American warship Lexington shelled and destroyed an Argentine fort in 1831, and released three American merchantmen which had been seized and held in the Falklands.

Sheep raising has been the principal industry of the windswept hilly islands whose climate and terrain parallel northern Scotland's. Like Iceland, the Falklands are completely treeless, and the landscape consists mostly of 600 square miles of moors, peat bogs and rock-ribbed hills and bays.

More than half the population live in Port Stanley in brightly painted galvanized iron and bricked chimneyed homes overlooking the harbor.

It was from this immaculate and picturesque port that the British fleet under Admiral Sturdee attacked and destroyed Admiral von Spee's fleet Dec. 8, 1914. And it was to Port Stanley that the British wounded were brought 25 years later after the Lower Plate River battle with the German pocket battleship Graf Spee.

The Falklands lie some 300 miles east of the Straits of Magellan where the winds blow the year round, often to gale force and above. However, the warm waters of the South Atlantic give the Falklands a moderate climate that seldom drops below 20 degrees in winter or gets above 60 in the summer.

Peat is the universal fuel of the islanders who are allotted bogs by the government where each householder cuts and dries his own supply, storing it in sheds which are a part of every house.

Food costs are low as each family grows its own vegetables and uses locally grown lamb, mutton and beef.

The governor-general, Sir Edwin Arrowsmith, explained that the colony is entirely self-supporting and maintains a balanced budget through taxes, duties on tobacco and alcohol and low cost of government.

"We are purely a welfare state," Sir Edwin explained, "where medical treatment is available to everyone at either no cost or very low cost. The most complicated surgery would cost you less than $15. We have a flying doctor service to the outlying areas, and pay state benefits to families whose breadwinners are sick or hospitalized. And, naturally, we have old age pensions and benefits for the infirm."

The population has remained fairly stable throughout the years as many of the Falkland Island youths leave for New Zealand and Australia where they feel there is greater opportunity. The Falklands Islands Co. Ltd., which controls most of the colony's economy, hires labor from the United Kingdom under five-year contract to maintain an adequate labor force.

Crime is practically unknown, and the only police problem has been alcoholism. Chief Constable W. L. Walton explained that this had been effectively controlled by the unique system of "blacklisting" anyone convicted of repeated drunken and disorderly conduct.

"For a period of one year," the police chief explained, "the offender is prohibited from obtaining liquor anywhere in the islands. His name is listed in all bars and bottle stores, and anyone who helps him obtain a drink is fined $70 while the offender gets three months in jail. Being a small community, we can use this system very effectively."

The blacklist can be applied, Walton added, to any person who "lessens his estate, injures his health or interrupts the peace and harmony of his home through repeated drunkeness."

Although no eligible Falkland Islander has ever been drafted into the Argentine army, all are theoretically subject to the draft as the Argentine government still considers the Falklands Argentine territory.

"That is one of the reasons," explained Colonial Secretary A. G. Denton-Thompson, "that all of our commerce and dealings are through the Uruguayan port of Montevideo instead of Buenos Aires. It is extremely doughtful if the Argentines would ever try to impress a Falkland Islander into the Argentine military service, but things being as they are, we just avoid them."

Togetherness In Sky

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Two lieutenant colonels at Lockbourne Air Force Base claim a record for togetherness. Robert A. Stuemfle, a command pilot, and Harvey G. Layman, a master navigator, claim to be the only two men presently on a B47 jet bomber crew to have flown together since 1953.

Once-Gallant B-17 Disappears Ends Life Of Active Service

By ROBERT J. SERLING

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Unnoticed but not unlamented, the gallant B-17 has disappeared from the skies it once ruled.

The Air Force has destroyed the last B-17 carried on its books as a missile-target aircraft, the Coast Guard has given up the B-17's it used as air-sea rescue planes, and about all that remains is a flock of legends and memories.

One of them is being used as a flying aquarium. A couple are still flying as crop-dusters. But as an active aircraft, the B-17 has gone into retirement.

Dubbed the "Flying Fortress" when Boeing brought out the first model in 1935, the B-17 was undoubtedly the most famous warplane ever built. At the time, it was widely criticized as too big a plane for pilots to handle. By the end of World War II, however, Boeing and two other licensed manufacturers had turned out 12,731 of the four-engined giants and they carried the brunt of the air war against Nazi Germany.

B-17's dropped 640,036 tons of bombs on European targets — about 75 per cent of the bomb tonnage unloaded by all U.S. aircraft. In compiling this record, the B-17 also managed to build a host of legends about its fantastic durability.

It was a noisy and drafty plane. Pilots claimed it was like taking off in a perforated box car. But there never was an airplane built that could absorb punishment like the B-17. They used to limp home on two engines, with tails half shot away and wings literally flapping.

One of the favorite B-17 stories concerned the ship that developed engine trouble over Italy. The crew bailed out, leaving behind a couple of small dogs carried as mascots.

The B-17 droned along on two engines, finally wound up over Turkey, ran out of gas and glided to a perfect landing. When Turkish troops inspected the plane, all they found were the two dogs. To this day, some of those soldiers probably are convinced the U.S. trained canines to fly bombers.

The most famous B-17 was "Alexander the Swoose" which set a wartime record by averaging 150 combat hours a month. Originally, it was just an ordinary, run-of-the-mill B-17 which was parked on Clark Field in the Philippines Dec. 8, 1941.

Attacking Japanese planes made a mess out of that particular bomber. They tore holes in the shining aluminum, turned the four engines into junk and did a haircut on its two miles of wiring. When they finished, the $200,000 B-17 was worth about $200 in a junk yard. That's where it would have ended except that the U.S. needed planes too badly.

Mechanics installed undamaged engines from hopelessly wrecked planes. They patched up the wiring and grafted parts from other aircraft beyond repair. That's where this B-17 got its name — "Alexander the Swoose," after the Walt Disney character that was half swan and half goose. The crew painted a funny-looking bird on "Alexander's" nose, with the body and wings of a goose and the head and neck of a swan. Underneath they lettered the words, "It Flies?"

"Alexander" flew. Missions over the Philippines and Dutch East Indies. In one year, the hybrid bomber flew enough missions to equal 15 flights around the world. "Alexander" became famous after someone wrote a book about it and an Air Corps general pulled "Alexander" out of combat duty and made it his personal plane for a while.

"Alexander" eventually was reduced to ferrying personnel and mail. V-J Day found it in a graveyard for surplus warplanes too weary and battered for active duty. But Air Force officials who remembered the veteran saved "Alexander" from the junk yard and marked it for perpetual display in the Smithsonian Air Museum.

That was the story of the most famous B-17. "Alexander the Swoose" . . . Alexander the Indestructible . . . a crazy, mixed-up airplane with a second-hand hide and a funny nickname and a living, breathing personality . . . with a couple of hundred worn-out parts belonging to someone else and the spirit of American air power in every aching bolt.

There was and is a bit of "Alexander" in every U.S. plane, including the old, beat-up B-17's that wound up their lives acting as drone punching bags for the new guided missiles . . . doing a dirty job for their country as they did a long time ago when they were proud and deadly queens of the air.

Men With Same Names Finally Meet

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Paul Allen Mayes met Paul Allen Mayes as the result of an accident. Officers said a car driven by Paul Allen Mayes, 26, rammed into a bus driven by Paul Allen Mayes, 39.

The men, whose names are listed side by side in the city directory, had never met before and are not related.

Health Scholarships

NEW YORK (UPI) — Alaska and Hawaii may have been slow in joining the Union, but there's nothing backward about their bright young men and women. Students from the two new states won six of the 402 health scholarships offered this year by the National Foundation. The scholarships are worth $2,000 for four years of college training in medicine, nursing, physical therapy, occupational therapy, or medical social work.

Close To Home

Hospital Wards Labeled Outmoded

By DELOS SMITH
U.P.I. Science Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — From both the scientific and humanitarian viewpoints, the hospital ward is out-moded and must be abolished, according to a surgical scientist who is internationally known for contributions to hospital techniques.

Scientifically, Dr. Rupert Vaughan Hudson's chief concern was with the increasing dangers of getting a staphylococcal infection in the modern hospital. But on the human side he thought sick animals are often handled with more consideration than sick people.

It is not unusual for a sick dog to be put in the best bedroom, he said. "But our patients are put into large dormitories and obliged to adjust themselves to endure an intensely public life with many discomforts which are in no way essential for their investigation and treatment."

His idea was to partition hospital wards into rooms. They would be very small rooms, just large enough to contain one bed, a bedside table, and a cabinet for the patient's clothes. But the patient would have his privacy and would be better protected from any staphylococcal bacteria on the loose.

Most wards could be partitioned with no more than a 10 per cent loss of beds, he argued. Ideally there would be a central corridor with all room doors giving into it in two facing rows. This compactness would permit the same number of ward nurses and attendants to care for as many patients as they do now.

The cost would be relatively low if the kind of partitioning now used in offices was adopted. These walls are prefabricated in standard units and are easily put up or taken down. And these walls could be washed down with disinfectants or better, with steam, readily and without damage, he said.

Scientifically, all this would do much to lick the problem of "hospital infection" which is a problem wherever there are hospitals. Some tribes of staphylococcal bacteria are now immune to the antibiotics which killed their forebears. They can sleep for long periods. In the noses of nurses, attendants and doctors, as well as patients until something happens to bring them to life.

But even so, the hospital ward "is socially undesirable and medically unsound," Hudson said. "In 1960, the public, the doctor, and the nurse should no longer be expected to put up with this scandalous impromptu."

Ward patients are constantly assaulted by noises, many of them most upleasant as in "the recovery from anesthesia and the complaint of pain or fear." The lights are turned on periodically during the night, and so sleeping pills are used "wholesale" to make up for these "defects in medical care."

Hudson is British. He was one of the first well known surgical voices to be raised for abolishing the hospital ward, and he raised it in the authoritative technical journal, "The Lancet." British and American hospitals are so very similar they're all but identical. The quality and cost of medical care are hot subjects in our country, particularly in this election year.

Ache Has Head Start

NEW YORK (UPI) — You can have a whopper of a stomach ache for no reason other than unhappiness.

This old wives tale is supported by a preliminary research report published by the American Psychiatric Association. During the experiment in progress, doctors measure stomach levels of gastric juice in patients complaining of stomach distress—with no apparent cause other than unhappiness.

And No Free Cigar

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A bogus check artist has been capitalizing on a "new father" routine, the Ohio Bankers Assn. warns. The association said a number of eastern Ohio banks were defrauded by a man who offered two checks, one for deposit and one for cashing. Victims were disarmed by his bragging about his new fatherhood status, the warning said.

Teens Put Up Reward

Principal K. W. Christopher says high school clubs posted a $100 reward for the apprehension and conviction of the vandals.

German See Show Trial Of Eichmann

FRANKFURT, Germany (UPI) — Most West Germans view the upcoming trial of Adolf Eichmann with mixed satisfaction and fear that old sores are going to be irritated again.

Most of them consider Eichmann a cold-blooded murderer and are happy that the onetime Nazi leader — accused of masterminding the murder of six million jews—has been caught at last.

But many are afraid that a show trial will bring a new wave of world resentment against Germany itself.

The government has said it will not make any effort to have Eichmann extradited to Germany, and will render Israel any assistance it can in trying him.

Servatius has no sympathies with the Nazi leader, but has taken the case simply because he believes even a mass murderer deserves competent legal representation.

Tourists In Britain Get Free Medical Care

LONDON (UPI) — Britain offers its foreign visitors a service which may not be available to tourists anywhere else in the world—free emergency medical care.

Any tourist who has the misfortune to break a leg or suddenly requires surgery or a blood transfusion will be taken care of by the British National Health Plan and will be charged nothing for the service.

But it has to be an emergency. Any foreigner who thinks he can come to Britain for the medical treatment he knows he needs before leaving home with the idea of getting it free here may never even get past the immigration officer.

Of course, treatment is available to anyone who cares to pay for it. But British hospitals have a six-month waiting list for non-emergency cases because so many of its citizens are taking advantage of the inexpensive medical care offered by the health plan.

Judged by the health of the nation since its introduction in 1948, the service has been a success.

Maternal and infant mortality rates have reached a record low. Tuberculosis, once a major scourge of the nation, is rapidly being brought under control.

The National Health Service has not been exclusively responsible for all this but it has ensured that the discoveries of the research laboratories are made available to all British citizens.

The service has been criticized in detail but its over-all concept has not been seriously challenged.

Under it, 80 per cent of the nation's health bill is paid by tax money with the patients and social security plans putting up the rest.

Contributions by patients include one shilling (14 cents) for each prescription, whether it's aspirin or some more expensive drug, and one pound ($2.80) for each series of dental treatment, whether it involves pulling a tooth or replacing a whole set of teeth.

A report by the Ministry of Health said that the health service was being plagued by rising costs, longer waiting lists for general hospitals, more patients in mental hospitals and a persistent shortage of dentists.

Doctors still claim they are overworked and underpaid. Patients gripe about long waits in hospital corridors or doctors' waiting rooms, and hospital staffs point to the waiting lists for beds.

ELISE MUROLO
Seeks Columbus crown

Kentfield Girl In Columbus Queen Race

A 17-year-old Kentfield girl, who works in a San Francisco insurance office, has joined the race for queen to reign over Columbus Day festivities in San Francisco on Oct. 12.

She is Elise Murolo of 5 Broadway, Kentfield, who was graduated last month from Redwood High School and is now doing clerical work at Lumbermen's Mutual Insurance Co. in San Francisco.

Six other girls, all San Franciscans, are also running for the crown, in a ticket sale competition.

"I don't have the connections that the other girls have," Miss Murolo said. "Therefore, I really need Marin County support. They (the other girls) got a month's head start on me too."

Teener Buys Fire Engine

GRANBY, Conn. (AP)—When the North Granby fire department decided to sell a 1923 fire engine, teen-ager Julie Peck came forward.

She paid $320 for the engine after admitting to being "a real fire buff." The pert Smith College freshman didn't say what she intended to do with the fully-equipped engine.

4-7 P.M. Most Dangerous Driving Period, Says CHP

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The most dangerous time of the day to drive is between 4 o'clock in the afternoon and 7 in the evening, says the California Highway Patrol.

During the period, 22 per cent of all fatal accidents and 29 per cent of all injury accidents occur.

The patrol points to fatigue at the end of the working day and tricks played by the half-light of evening as important factors.

Yet the most dangerous driving day of the week is Sunday, when most people don't work. Saturday runs a close second, while Tuesday seems to be the safest.

Last year 39 per cent of all injury and fatal traffic accidents investigated by the patrol took place on weekends.

The most dangerous month of the year is usually October, the patrol says, followed August and December. La year, however, August was t most dangerous driving mont

There were 221 traffic deat in August, 1959, and 203 October. The safest drivi month is February.

So from a safety standpoi the worst time to drive is b tween 4 and 7 p.m. on a Su day in October.

Burglars Can't Read

LAFAYETTE, Colo. (AP) — department store here has bee a pushover for burglars the la two years.

So the store placed a placar on a front glass door. It rea "Robbers, Please Don't Con Back."

The next strike was throug that very door.

U.S. Capitol Getting First Real Bath

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. Capitol is getting its first real bath in 95 years—and the results are astounding even those who proposed the cleanup.

Almost a century of accumulated grime is vanishing under the combined assault of high pressure water and sand blasting.

"The results are absolutely amazing," said D. Stafford Kelley, an official of the Capitol architect's office and project director for extension of the Capitol's east front.

After being accustomed for so many years to the dull gray that enveloped the Capitol, he said everyone is astounded at how shimmering white the House wing is with the grime gone. The Senate wing is next for a cleanup.

It was because of the approximately 25-million-dollar project to extend the capitol's east front by 32½ feet that the need arose to clean the two wings—both completed in 1865.

The east front is being reconstructed in white Georgia marble. As a Capitol elevator operator aptly put it, "if they hadn't cleaned up the wings it would have been like leaving a dirty ring in the bathtub."

Both are being painted a soft off-white in place of the battleship gray which in the past matched the grime of the House and Senate wings.

The west front is being painted instead of cleaned, Kelley explained, because it is constructed of standstone and could not withstand the water and sand blasting.

German Finds Key To Old Witchcraft

GOETTINGEN, Germany (UPI) —In a gray salve compounded from common plants, a Goettingen professor believes he has found a key to some of the mysteries of medieval witchcraft.

Dr. Will-Erich Peuckert, director of the Ethnological Institute at Goetingen's Georgia August University, mixed the salve from a 17th Century recipe with ingredients that included deadly nightshade, thornapples and henbane.

Then he rubbed it on his forehead and into his armpits and found that it brought on a narcotic-like sleep in which he saw the kind of wild visions often described by Medieval witches.

Peuckert believes many of the witches simply were addicts to the mixture, who experienced the visions so often they came to believe them.

Peuckert carried out his experiment with a lawyer friend who went through the same sleep, lasting nearly 24 hours.

When they awoke, with parched throats and aching heads, they wrote down their dreams separately and found that their records of wild witch rides, demonic dances and similar phantasies tallied closely with each other and with Medieval accounts.

Peuckert's research has convinced him that there is a scientific basis for many things connected with witchcraft. Medieval recipes in particular, he said, often really worked.

Most scientists since have simply dismissed them without bothering to experiment, he claimed.

Peuckert's views contradict on many points those of another prominent student of witchcraft, retired Hamburg school teacher Johann Kruse, who has spent much of his life studying the impact of Medieval witchcraft on modern society.

Kruse said he believes witchcraft still haunts thousands of people in Germany, most of them in remote rural areas, but some even in large cities.

About 10,000 persons, he maintained, claim supernatural powers of some sort. Some are charlatans while others sincerely believe they can control devils, cast spells and cure sicknesses.

In addition, persons thought to be witches are often persecuted, he said, adding, "While witches are not burned anymore, except perhaps in effigy, they are often persecuted, disdained or driven to suicide."

In 1956 the State of Lower Saxony tried Ferdinand Masuch and Heinrich Schnell, publishers of the "Sixth and Seventh Books of Moses," which contained hundreds of pages dealing with witchcraft and faith-healing.

They were convicted, partly on Kruse's testimony, on charges of unfair competition, fraud, instigation to criminal offense and violation of the general disease law.

Kruse is skeptical about the value of witches' recipes, especially such exotic mixtures as "Devils Excrement" (a filthy, foul-smelling powder), "Dragons Blood," and "Elephant Lice."

"The number of people falling for this utter nonsense on the cultural level of cannibals, goes into the tens of thousands," he said.

Always Rivaling

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI) — The Minnesota State Fair, one of the largest in the nation, is now held here annually, but it wasn't always that way.

At one time, rivalry between St. Paul and sister-city Minneapolis was so great that Minneapolis sponsored a competing fair. When the Minneapolis event started drawing bigger crowds, the official fair was forced to move out of town. It was held at different cities for five years until a permanent fair grounds was established here.

Salt, Pepper Automat

LANCASTER, Ohio (UPI) — Floyd Roshon has made sure he'll have the salt and pepper shakers when he wants them at the table.

Roshon sawed a circular hole in the center of the dining room table, put the wooden circle back in place and attached an electric motor to make it revolve. He can throw a switch, when the shakers are out of reach, to bring them closer on the revolving centerpiece.

FIESTA WHIRL

Six men, by shifting their weight, activate a human pinwheel at Totonac Indian festival in Papantla, Mexico. The wheel can make 150 turns a minute.

As Easy As Sneezing

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — The common cold figured in an automobile accident here.

Leonard R. Romans, 42, told police that while driving, he sneezed, causing his glasses to slip off his nose. In pushing them back into place, he said, he turned the steering wheel of his car and the vehicle struck a utility pole. Romans was treated at a hospital.

Athletes Plan Dancing Classes

CHICAGO (UPI) — A local coach plans to pull his prep basketball squad up by the bootstraps with more dancing classes.

Coach Samuel Edelcup, cage tutor at Theodore Roosevelt High School who taught five ballroom dancing classes in physical education this year, said athletes among the 80 boys and girls in class found the social art a "terrific co-ordinator."

"The mind must tell the feet what to do," Edelcup said, "and co-ordination is the backbone of any athlete's proficiency."

The Girls Take Over

NEWARK, Ohio (AP)—Illness and a vacation almost turned nearby Alexandria into an all-woman village recently. Two of the seven businesses in the community are operated by women, and three others fell into feminine hands for a time when the proprietors became ill or went on vacation.

Public Servant

WANAQUE, N.J. (AP)— This community has a do-it-yourself mayor. He's Ernest E. Wuester, who earns his living by maintaining a machine shop. Recently he was called out of bed at 2 a.m. by a frantic citizen to fix a broken water main.

Michigan Releases Prisoners And Has Jobs Waiting For Them

LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — There's no place to go but to work for an inmate released from a Michigan prison.

And a top-notch employment sytem run by the Corrections Department helps released men get good jobs—some of them far better than the inmate ever held before going to jail.

"Even when times are rough we can generally find some kind of job for a man to do," said William F. Eardley, director of pardons and paroles.

Other states have looked over the Michigan system with an eye to starting a similar program, he said.

A grass-roots sales pitch by parole officers in the field is the best tool the department has for men about to be released, Eardley said.

Jobs are found for men going on parole, and also for those who are finishing a maximum sentence—no time off for good behavior.

"Part of our sales pitch is that when a man comes out of prison, the employer knows exactly what his background is. That's not always true with a man coming in off the street," Eardley said.

"And we never misrepresent a man. If he's a bad actor, we say so. But we also point out what the man can do and any special skills he has."

Parole officers all over the state keep in touch with prospective employers so they know what jobs are available. They also encourage visits to prison so men with jobs to offer can see what's available.

"We keep our hands on the employment pulse, so to speak," Eardley pointed out.

The control exercised by the Corrections Department over a man on parole often is a selling point to a prospective employer, he said. If a man doesn't show up for work, chances are his parole officer can locate him.

When a man is sent to prison, he is assigned a counselor. This official and others like him, work with the inmate right up to his discharge date. The inmate is encouraged to keep in contact with the outside world.

Particularly, he is helped to keep in touch with any job contacts he might have.

In prison, he's given a job that suits his special skills, if he has any, and if it's possible. If not, he is trained in one of the prison industries or some other training program.

About three months before he is scheduled to go before the Parole Board, the inmate is "pushed" to further job contacts.

A job offer is helpful — but not essential—when the Parole Board studies the man's case. If no job offer can be obtained, but a parole is arranged anyway, the man goes to a parole camp near the prison to await placement.

"The idea of prison industries is to train inmates so they can get an honest-to-gosh job on the outside," another corrections officer said.

The Michigan State Employment Service, and private employment agencies, co-operate with the Corrections Department to help inmates find that "honest-to-gosh" position upon parole or release, Eardley said.

"Unfortunately, there are a few employers who won't touch one of our men with a 40-foot pole," he added.

Besides the advantage of a co-ordinated employment system, Michigan has less rigid rules concerning jobs for ex-convicts than many states. A research analyst for the Corrections Department, Harold Kachelski, said some states prohibit all sorts of jobs, and often prevent former convicts from owning a business.

A good deal of common sense is the chief ingredient in Michigan's placement system, Kachelski said.

"After all, you wouldn't put an embezzler back in a bank," he noted.

Portable Electric Oven

A portable electric oven provides added convenience for informal dining by allowing the hostess to be with her guests. Designed for at-hand cookery, it is capable of holding three TV-dinners or a three-pound roast. The trim oven offers pre-set automatic cooking and keeps food warm until served. Its small size and smart styling makes the oven suitable for use on the patio.

Gives The Bees-ness

LABELLE, Fla. (AP) — A new version of the game "chicken"—in which schoolboys tested their bravery by turning over beehives—has been squelched by authorities. Police said that, on a dare, a boy would sneak up to a hive, flip it over, then flee with the bees swarming in pursuit. Some were painfully stung.

County Judge R. M. Harris, promised punishment worse than beestings if they persisted. All agreed to give up the game and some probably were glad to have the opportunity.

If Bay Area Attacked, WAF Has Vital Buttons To Push

By ELLEN FERNANDEZ

If an enemy plane attacks the Bay Area tomorrow, a woman may press the buttons and give the orders which will send planes scrambling for the sky and heading for the target.

First Lt. Clara Verner is one of two women "weapons controllers" in the Air Force. She works in a darkened room on top of Mount Tamalpais, sitting before a radar scope. Illumination comes only from the dimmed and flashing lights of electronic equipment and the giant transparent plotting board.

In this room is the master control center for seven other Bay Area radar stations, from hilltop sites to the moving radar of ships and planes.

An unknown plane entering the area brings a scramble of planes from Hamilton Air Force Base, Moffett or Alameda Naval Air stations, Travis or Castle Air Force bases or National Guard planes from Fresno or Reno.

The planes will be controlled by voice radio from Mount Tamalpais until they are within range with their own radar, or will be controlled automatically by electronic equipment.

Lieutenant Verner may have duty as an "attack director," controlling the intercepting plane, or as an "air surveillance officer" supervising the team which picks up the target.

Only one other WAF has a similar job, in Wisconsin.

Clara Verner was a vocational nurse until she enlisted in the Air Force in 1951. "I decided I liked to travel and the only way I could, being as I didn't have any money, was to join the Air Force."

In 1955 she reinlisted as a staff sergeant for a six-year hitch and today plans to make the Air Force her career.

Officer candidate school in 1956 was followed by a commission and the assignment to weapons controller school which she requested. "I enjoy working with the operations end of the Air Force, not just shuffling paper," she says.

She got the action she craves —when she was a passenger in an F-104, flying at 50,000 feet at more than twice the speed of sound, becoming the third woman to ride in the jet fighter.

Lieutenant Verner lives in Mill Valley, down the hill which often is surrounded by fog. Above, the radar antennae nod up and down, back and forth like giant flowers.

The "invader" pilot tries to imitate the radar dispatcher's voice, to confuse the interceptor. The dulcet tones of the lieutenant have made it hopeless.

The Mount Tamalpais force of some 250 persons is being reduced in preparation for a move to Beale Air Force Base near Marysville, where the major control will be. Mount Tamalpais will become one of the reporting radar sites.

The Mount Tamalpais contingent, the 666th Aircraft Control and Warning Squadron, is part of the 28th Air Division which is turning to SAGE—semi-automatic ground environment, which means greater-than-ever electronic control of planes.

Another change may be coming up for the lieutenant. She's studying plane and spherical trigonometry at the University of San Francisco at night and applying for an Air Force "scholarship" for two more years of study to get an electrical engineering degree.

Russ Reported Building Up East German Fleet

By CAY BROCKDORFF

HAMBURG, Germany (UPI) — Russia is building up Communist East Germany's small and outmoded fleet in a move to match West Germany's growing naval strength, according to western intelligence reports.

Soviet efforts to give the Communist navy more fighting punch are viewed by West German defense officials as a Communist action that will strengthen Bonn's attempts to life restrictions imposed on the West German navy by the Western European Union.

Adm. Arleigh Burke, U.S. chief of naval operations, has seconded German motions to change the current tonnage limit for surface warships from 5,000 tons to 5,000 tons and permit the country to build submarines larger than 350 tons.

Russian strategists believe that in the event of war, the Eastern Communist bloc must crush western defenses in the Baltic Sea if Soviet submarines and surface vessels are to break out into the open Atlantic.

At the same time Soviet control of the Baltic's western approaches were viewed as a prerequisite to protect the Northern flank of any soviet troop movements on the central European continent.

According to Western intelligence reports, the Soviets have told East German Communists that they will shortly receive five Skoryi class destroyers to bring up to a total of seven the East German destroyer fleet. Two destroyers are to be launched shortly at East German shipyards.

The Skoryi destroyers displace 2,600 tons and carry four 4.8-inch guns and 10 torpedo tubes. They are operational in large numbers in the Soviet fleet.

Naval sources said the Soviets are also handing over to East Germany 12 350-ton submarines of the Soviet MV class, armed with two torpedo tubes and developing a submerged speed of 10 knots. These vessels are described by West German experts as "not too impressive."

Four more German-built destroyers, the first to be commissioned in the fleet next year, will join the nation's destroyer squadrons within two years.

The West German navy currently comprises 137 warships, including a fleet of some 30 high-speed quadruple screw torpedo boats, reaching express-train speed of 45 knots.

Intelligence sources, assessing East German naval strength pointed out, however, that the communists are expected to run into difficulties training crews in appropriate numbers for their new ships.

East Germany has a considerable manpower shortage.

Military training of communist sailors was reported also to be suffering from an over-emphasis of political indoctrination.

Married Students Face Problems

MANHATTAN, Kan. (UPI) — College married students face four major problems, Dale L. Womble, professor of family and child development at Kansas State University, says.

He lists them as widely differing backgrounds, parental influence, jurisdictional arguments, and sex adjustments and standards of marriage. Womble said "a marriage counselor does not advise, but he gives facts, information and explores various alternate actions for the coupfe. The client makes his own decision."

Employment Practices Commission To Meet

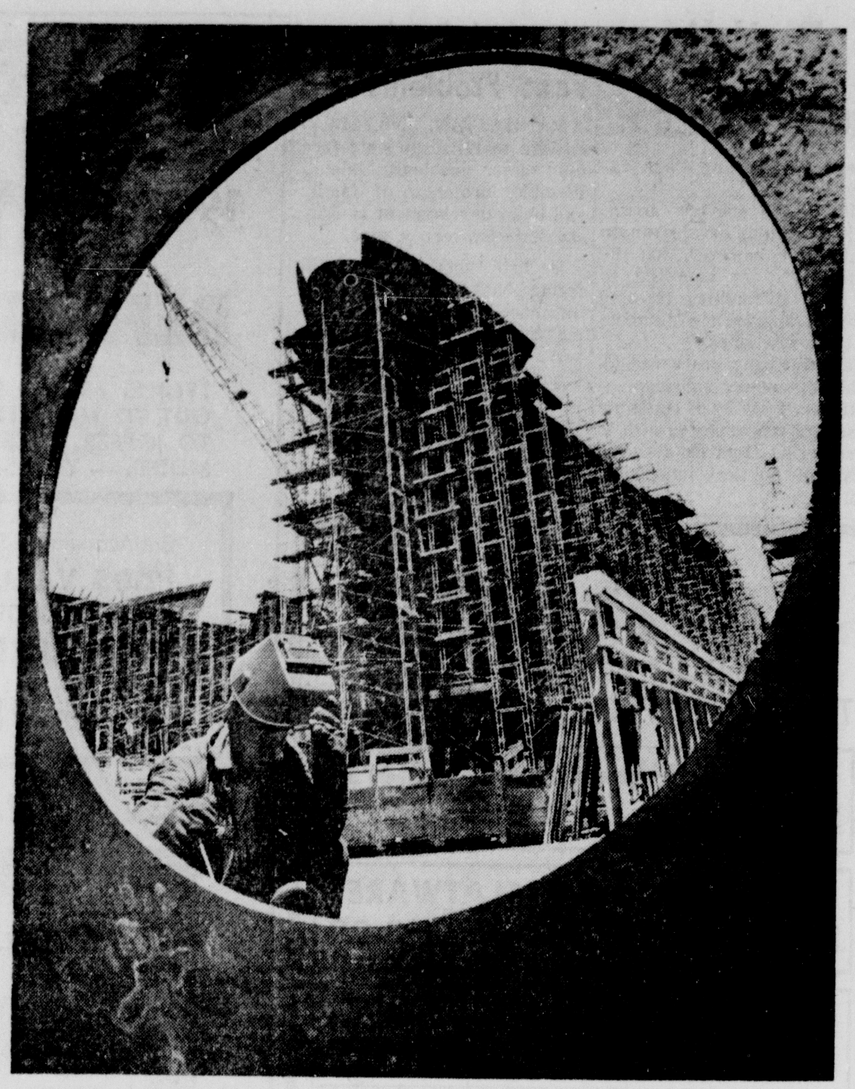
SACRAMENTO (CNS) — The California Fair Employment Practices Commission meets in San Francisco Aug. 3 for a public hearing on the second phase of his program of bringing all employers under a state program of non-discrimination in employment, promotions, down-grading and firing.

Earlier, the commission, created by the 1959 legislature, adopted a pre-employment inquiry guide which tells employers what information they can seek from job applicants and what information is on the taboo list. Illegal are requests for photographs and any information about the applicant's citizenship, age, birthplace, as well as the addresses of his nearest relatives.

The FEPC was appointed last September and, thus far, has been operating under resolutions. It now wants to put its procedures in the form of a set of rules. The rules will concern filing of complaints, procedures for conducting investigations of complaints, taking of depositions, subpoena of records and witnesses in the event of public hearing, appeal from Commission orders and court enforcement if the commission's orders are disobeyed.

Meanwhile, the Commission staff reported cases of alleged unlawful discrimination in employment totaled 287 by the end of June. The commission has closed 116 cases, with discrimination found and remedied in 30 of them. In 63 cases, no discrimination was found. The other 23 cases were dismissed because the Commission lacked jurisdiction or the complainant failed to proceed.

The commission had announced earlier that the rather restrictive pre-employment inquiry guide was "only the beginning" of putting the 1959 law into full effect.



PORTHOLE FOR A NEW SHIP

Welder Andrew O'Neill puts finishing touch on porthole of the latest addition to American President Lines fleet, the President Roosevelt in San Francisco. While in the background, the President Lincoln can be seen. The President Lincoln is at the 50-per cent completed stage due for launching in September, while the President Roosevelt is due for launching in December. The President Lincoln will become a part of the APL fleet early in 1961 on the 100th anniversary of Abraham Lincoln's inauguration as 16th President. (UPI Telephoto)

Jobless Days Plague Men In Steel Work

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—The men who man the steel mills stringing through the valleys of this great steelmaking area are bucking serious unemployment for the third time in as many years.

Typical of the thousands of men idled by the skidding summer fortunes of the steel companies was Al Coffman, who was furloughed last month when the furnace he helped tend was banked because no one wanted to buy the metal pouring from its taphole.

"The recession got me in 1958," the burly, shirt-sleeved furnace hand recited as he lounged on a bench in Mellon Square — the heart of Pittsburgh's glittering refurbished golden triangle district.

"Last year I sat out the strike. Now I'm out of work again. The steel industry this year seems to be leading the parade down the ladder."

In addition to those without jobs, statisticians estimated another 200,000 workers in basic steel and 150,000 more in the fabricating industry were working less than 40 hours a week. The union's total membership is about 1,250,000.

Al looked up at the stainless steel walls of the U.S. Steel Building towering 41 stories above the square and gestured:

"I wonder when the headquarters boys up there are going to call me back so that I'll be getting good pay checks like I was instead of get-by payments from unemployment compensation."

State's Folsom Prison Has 80th Anniversary

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Folsom Prison, home of some of California's worst badmen since the days of the old west, celebrated its 80th birthday thisweek.

The prison, which now has a population of 2,268, is the maximum security unit of California's diversified prison system and older than any institution but San Quentin. In addition to the population total, another 489 inmates are quartered in seven conservation camps under administration of Folsom.

The prison came into being in 1880 when the site was deeded to the state by the Natomas Water and Mining Company from the Rancho de los Americanos. The price of $15,000 was to be paid with by inmate labor at 50 cents a day.

Construction of the first unit of the prison was started Oct. 17, 1878, and completed in March, 1880. On July 26, 1880, the first complement of 44 prisoners arrived. Number One prisoner on the roster was Chong Hing.

Because of its maximum security character and old brick walls and guard towers, Folsom prison has been depicted in a number of movies and films. Actually, there have been few if any significant riots or disturbances.

The first hanging was held at the prison in 1894. In 1912, all corporal punishment discontinued and the first educational program was started.

Book Of Romance Has Page Torn Out

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP)—A note has been pinned to one page in the marriage license record book in the office of County Recorder John G. Utz, It reads:

"..... phoned. He said Emma would not marry him."

Utz says he pinned the note to the record to show why the license data was not complete. He adds there would be no refund to the man who lost Emma.

Out With Comfort

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP)—Muscogee County jailers will have to find new ways of occupying their time while on duty. Chief jailer A. F. Hearn says he had a television set and a bed removed from the jailers' quarters for efficiency reasons and "alertness to duty."

Hungry Students

NORMAN, Okla. (UPI)—A herd of 600 cattle a year is slaughtered to feed the 3,000 students who live in dormitories at the University of Oklahoma. Also consumed during a year are more than 12,000 turkeys, chickens and capons, hundreds of pigs, enough fresh fish to stock a good-sized lake and thousands of cans of salmon and tuna.

Lady-In-Wading

The lady-in-waiting who wants to go wading will be fashionable in "little boy shorts" worn under matching and contrasting colored sleeveless tops. The shorts in one ensemble are bloomer-style.

Lots Of Luck

KEENE, Ohio (UPI) — Horseshoes may be a lucky omen for some people—but not Norman G. Gauvin of Marlboro, N. H.

He was driving in South Keene when suddenly a horseshoe crashed through his windshield and landed in the front seat next to him. He said a horse was going in the opposite direction and somehow tossed the shoe.

Jungle Drums Beat In Germany— But It's Just Townmen's Club

RODENKIRCHEN, Germany (UPI)—When the native drums start beating in this quiet Rhineland village, the locals don't turn a hair.

They know it's just Alois Liesenfeld and his friends up to their old tricks. Liesenfeld, a 62-year-old drugstore owner, runs what he claims is the only authentic "jungle club" in Western Europe.

Once a month, between 20 and 30 soberly dressed Germans — bank clerks, businessmen and white collar workers —meet in Rodenkirchen's Inn. There, they shake off the trappings of everyday Western civilization and become African tribesmen.

Liesenfeld says he formed the African club more than seven years ago "to pay back the enormous debt the white man owes to his black brother."

Liesenfeld, who goes under the name of "Ali" in club affairs, said the purpose of the group is to study centuries-old African tribal customs and to spread the information in Europe.

Now his home is a virtual museum, with souvenirs from every part of Africa decorating the walls. The place of honor is given to a letter from Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia acknowledging the "fine work" the club is doing in bringing Africa to Europe.

Eleven of the club's members boast some African backgrounds. Liesenfeld himself as a young man lived for 15 years in East Africa, and was named an honorary chief by one of the local tribes because "he was a white man who learned the magic of the black people."

Liesenfeld still keeps in touch by mail with his "fellow" tribesmen in Africa. He said their descriptions of current African rites helps protect the club from "Hollywood influences."

Horse Trader Can Make Money

Take the case of Jack Peek, an agent for the E. C. Johnson ranch at Longview, Tex.

Namesakes In Court

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI)— Andrew Jackson and George Washington appeared on the Circuit Court docket together here. Jackson was appealing a drunken driving case and Washington a conviction for driving without a license.

Try Out Costs

BENNINGTON, Vt. (UPI) — Michael T. Farmer, 17, was fined $20 for driving 70 miles an hour in a 40-mile-an-hour zone because "I was buying a car and naturally wanted to try it out."

'White House' Man Won't Move

RICHMOND, Calif. (UPI) — Harold and Lora Hatfield live in a "White House" but they won't be moving after the presidential elections.

The Hatfields and the Eisenhowers share the same address —1600 Pennsylvania Ave.—in different cities.

Both houses are painted white, but they have only one other thing in common. Neither tenant owns his own home. The Eisenhower's tenancy ends Jan. 1, 1961. The Hatfields rent their home.

"I'll take my job, my home, everything here," Hatfield, a chemical engineer, said when asked if he'd switch places with the President.

Heartening Word

NEW YORK (UPI) — Four of five children born with heart defects now can be helped by various operations, according to a new booklet from the American Heart Association.

The booklet, "If Your Child Has a Congenital Heart Defect," estimates that between 30,000 and 40,000 children are born each year with congenital heart defects and 75 to 80 per cent can be helped by surgery.

Tops In Space

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP)—Airmen at Warren Air Force base are pretty proud of their Atlas missiles, which will soon be poised for firing at enemy targets.

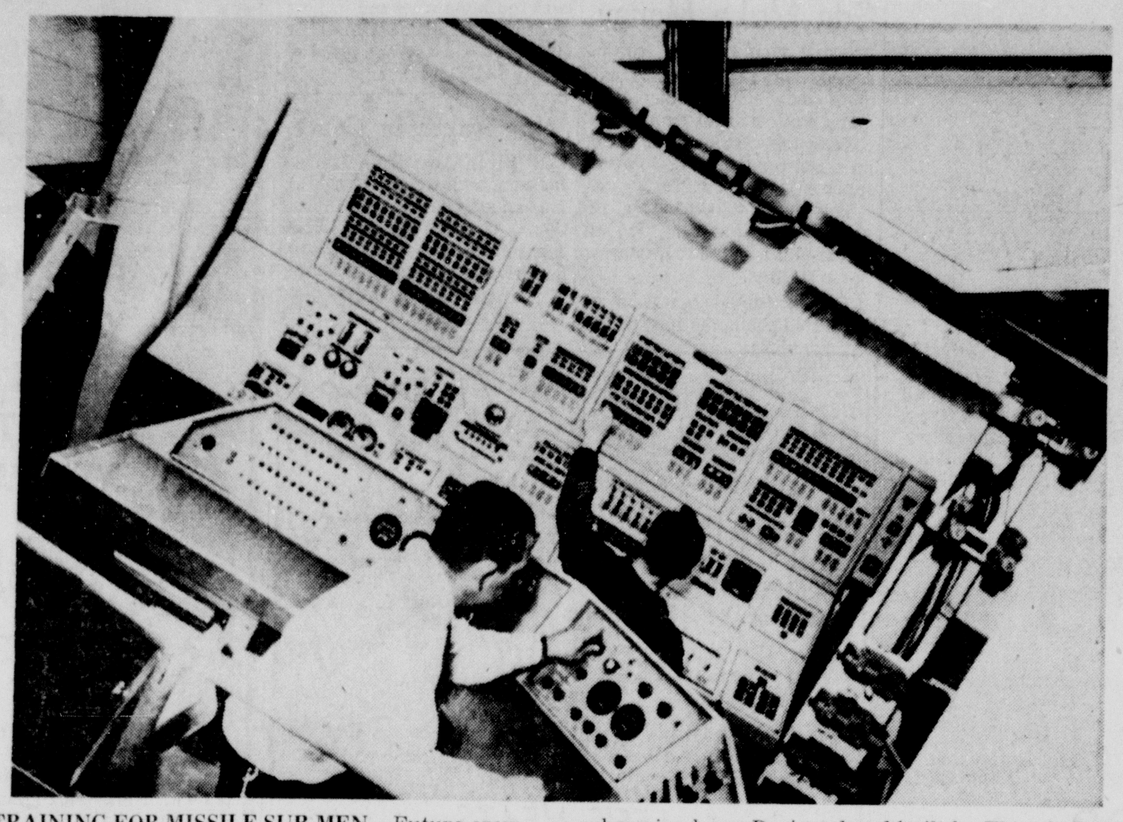
Navy May Up Polaris Sub Construction



TRAINING FOR MISSILE SUB MEN—Future crewmen of Polaris-firing submarines will be able to develop sea legs before boarding their ships with this trainer being installed at the New London, Conn., submarine base. Designed and built by Electric Boat division of General Dynamics Corp., it can duplicate every aspect of a Polaris missile launching while it rolls and pitches exactly as a submarine would. (UPI Telephoto)

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A bigger and speedier building program for Polaris missile-launching submarines is a likelihood if the Navy keeps on smacking the bullseye in tests as it did with its first two undersea firings on July 20.

The huge nuclear-powered submarines, each fitted to carry 16 Polaris ballistic missiles, now are on a construction schedule of three a year. Defense officials have thought that was enough until the weapon could prove itself.

The Navy believes it could increase the rate to 12 a year and thus vastly shorten the time when a projected fleet of 45 would be ready to roam beneath the oceans, concealed and sure to wreak retribution for any attack on America.

Russia has nothing like the thermonuclear Polaris and submarine combination—not yet, anyway—and the U.S. Navy's enthusiasm for its unique new global war deterrent has been boundless.

Construction is exactly on the stepped-up schedule that the Navy promised the Defense Department in late 1957 when the first Sputnik launching fetched a lot of U.S. military programs from the back to the front burner. That is to say, the first two Polaris subs will be at sea with missiles by the end of 1960 instead of 1963.

"My goodness!" was the Admiral's unsalty, un-sailor-like comment when told the New Yorker had charged there was no Polaris sub operational yet and that there would be only two by 1961.

"That's three years ahead of the original schedule, which I think is pretty good," Burke said.

What Rockefeller was trying to highlight was that talk about advanced weapons, including the Polaris, often gives the impression they are ready long before they really are.

For years the Navy has talked of the Polaris-submarine combination with unreserved enthusiasm and, it sometimes seemed, extravagantly. Cynics might have been moved to ask whether any other deterrent was needed once the Polaris went to sea.

With pardonable pride, Rear Adm. William F. Raborn, chief of the Polaris program, said after the July 20 launching that with Polaris subs "we will have more assured power in our hands than (with) any weapon system in the last 20 years."

That seemed to sweep aside the mighty U.S. Strategic Air Command with its 2,000 bombers and its intercontinental ballistic missiles.

It is doubtful if Raborn intended that interpretation but it is certain that he and all other Navy chiefs will continue to resist a proposal to put the Polaris under a new U.S. strategic command along with the Air Force's missiles and bombers.

The Polaris project was originated after the Navy divorced itself in 1956 from an unfortunate marriage with the Army. The two services had been instructed to devise a seaborne version of the Army's Jupiter missile. The big liquid-fueled Jupiter would have been limited to four missiles to a sub and would have posed extreme difficulties in handling its liquid propellents.

In 1956, the Navy recalls, there were two breakthroughs which permitted development of the Polaris. The United States had learned how to put hydrogen bombs in small packages and to make easy-to-handle solid rocket fuels.

The Navy parted company with the Army and promised a solid rocket with 1,500 miles range by 1963. After the Sputnik scare, the schedule was shortened so that a Polaris of 1,200 miles range could be in service by the end of 1960.

After the unqualified test launching last week, the situation now is this:

The Navy will have two Polaris subs, the George Washington and Patrick Henry, on patrol late this year. Together they will carry 32 missiles, two or three times the number of Atlas intercontinental ballistic missiles that will be operational at that time. The Atlas, however, carries a warhead two or three times as powerful and, at this stage, is probably more accurate and reliable.

The Navy will commission three more Polaris subs late this year and should introduce them into the fleet sometime next year. They are the Theodore Roosevelt, Robert E. Lee and Abraham Lincoln.

Four much larger Polaris subs, displacing 6,900 tons compared with 5,600 for earlier versions, are under construction.

The Navy has been authorized to order five additional subs in the fiscal year that started July 1 and to place some components of seven more on order. The total program now stands, therefore, at 21 missile submarines.

When the full, planned 45 have been built, the United Statess will have an investment of $8,645,000,000 in the entire program.

Accident Marks Wedding, Anniversary

OREGON CITY, Ore. (AP)—A few days before his wedding 50 years ago, Elmer S. Deming broke his leg but went ahead with his plans and was married in bed with the leg in a cast.

It was the same story when he observed his fiftieth wedding anniversary recently. He was in bed with a cast on his leg for a broken hip.

Much Milk Shipped

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI) — The United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF) has shipped more than a billion pounds of skimmed milk—or about six times the weight of the liner Queen Elizabeth—to the world's children since its inception.

Social Climbing Idea Makes Money

BALTIMORE (AP) — The real estate man said some of his new houses didn't sell well at all while priced at $11,000 and advertised in a conventional manner.

But they were snapped up, he said, when he described them as appropriate for junior executives and jacked up the price to $13,500. He got the idea from a best-selling book on social climbing.

Taste Vary With Age?

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J. (AP) —Do you "taste" as well when you're young as you do when you're old?

Researchers at Rutgers University are experimenting with over 200 persons to find out why youngsters refuse to eat some things that they may find delicious when older. So far they report "there's a tremendous difference in taste" as any child with a plateful of spinach could tell them.

Picnic To Highlight Aspects Of Marin's Colorful History

Various and contrasting episodes of Marin's colorful past will be highlighted with songs and dances at an old-fashioned picnic to be held on Saturday at Boyd Park in San Rafael. The event, sponsored by the Marin County Historical Society and San Rafael Recreation Department, will begin at 11 a.m.

Those attending are to take basket lunches. Benches and tables are being set up. Parking has been simplified. Drivers of cars can let their passengers out at the entrance to the park at the head of B Street, then park in the Northwestern Savings and Loan Assn. lot at Fifth Avenue and B Street.

The program will begin at 1 p.m. with David Belrose as master of ceremonies. Young performers will do Indian and Spanish dances and conclude with a Hansel and Gretel ballet.

The emphasis will not be all on youth. Old-timers will also have a part in the program. A cash award will be made to the oldest Marin County native present. This will be given by the historical society with its president, Thomas W. Peryam, making the presentation.

Interspersed in the program will be 10-minute talks by long-time residents of the county. Two cash awards will be made for the most interesting and informative talks. Selections will be made by a three-member jury.

The recreation department is building a special stage for the program and is providing the loudspeaker equipment.

No admission charge will be made.

King Spurned Bombay; Now It's A Crossroads

BOMBAY (UPI) — Less than three centuries ago, Bombay was part of the dowry when a Portuguese princess married a British king, but he found it so barren and unprofitable he gave it away.

Today, Bombay is the "Crossroads to the East," a congested seaport city of businessmen, bootleggers and people whose only homes are the pavement on which they sleep.

It is a city without much of a past. Hardly anything within its municipal limits is more than 300 years old. Even most of its real estate was not here 200 years ago. Modern Bombay consists of hundreds of acres reclaimed from the Arabian Sea.

While other Asian cities are proud of their temples, walls and stone Buddhas reputedly thousands of years old, about the oldest thing in Bombay is a crumbling Portuguese fort erected just 350 years ago.

When the wide-ranging Portuguese colonists arrived here in the 16th century, Bombay wa. a settlement of rock, swamps and jungles, consisting of seven small islands occupied by a dozen small fishing villages.

In 1661, King Charles II of England married the Infanta Catherina, and the Portuguese gave Bombay to the British as part of the princess's dowry.

Finding it "an unprofitable possession," Charles desperately handed over Bombay to the British East India Company, which had colonized the rest of India. Bombay's population then was 10,000, and its annual revenue a mere $30,000.

In the last half century, Bombay has exploded into a city of 3.2 million. Its population has trebled in the last 20 years alone, and today the city has 700,000 dirt-poor pavement dwellers who live and sleep on the streets. There is nothing anyone can do about them; there is just no place to house them.

The city's growth has been unplanned and erratic. The municipality counts 144 slum areas within its limits. Before the government could act, 3,500 factories sprang up. The order barring any more new industries in the city was unnecessary; there is no more room.

Situated on a narrow, two-mile broad tongue of land pointing south from the Indian mainland into the Arabian Sea, Bombay's growth has been longitudinal.

From end to end, post-war growth has stretched it an incredible 31 miles. The pressure on space is so intense, there are hardly a dozen parks in the city. Its bustling business center is entirely in the southernmost tip, where rents are astronomically high.

To pay their house rent, workers are being pushed farther and farther into the northern suburbs. During office hours, suburban trains, packed beyond capacity, bring more than half a million commuters into the city, hundreds hanging precariously on the running boards.

The Bombay State Government's study group on Greater Bombay has frankly panicked at this uncontrollable growth. In June it reported:

"Apart from 700,000 pavement dwellers, and people living in nooks and crannies, under staircases, along the fringes between park walls and public streets, large masses of the population live in desperate conditions of overcrowding at the rate of nine persons and even more per 100 sq. ft. of floor space."

The city's streets are so congested with more than 30,000 vehicles of all kinds that the study group said, "The physical limits of the streets have now been reached and no more public buses can possibly be added to the existing 1,000 without bringing all traffic to a dead halt."

Attracted by the lure of the city lights, several hundred thousand teenagers of both sexes descend on Bombay every year. Although numerous industries, tenements and places of entertainment go up every year, there are not enough jobs for everyone. Sooner or later, the girls turn to prostitution, while the boys become procurers or rum-runners.

Circumventing Bombay's state-ordered prohibition has become lucrative. Making illicit liquor is a cottage industry large enough, some say, to merit a loan from the World Bank.

The central Indian government has its eye on Bombay as the most vigorous and fastest growing city in the country. One of its suburbs, called Trombay, has two modern oil refineries, a modern naval base for the Indian navy, an atomic energy plant with two reactors and a projected naval ordnance depot to manufacture torpedoes and naval shells.

All this makes Bombay the most strategic single spot in the whole country. Finding oil nearby has added to its importance.

Due to the enormous need for living space, no building is demolished intentionally, however old it may be. Residents of condemned, overage buildings continue to stay on, as there is nowhere else they can go. The only "slum clearance" work is done by the monsoons, which cause dozens of structures to collapse every year.

Federal Policies Relaxed On Building In U.S. Forests

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Prospective summer home enthusiasts or resort operators who want to operate on federal mountain property have received good news in the form of new regulations which could assure them of remaining on the property.

Until recently, all leases from the U.S. Forest Service for summer cabin sites or businesses were on revocable leases. In the case of a number of home owners and one business near Donner Summit, they were given notice their leases had been canceled and were ordered to remove the improvements from the property.

The home owners and the business objected that they should be paid for the value of their improvements.

Under the new Forest Service regulations, prospective home owners will have a choice of the old type revocable lease or may receive long-term leases —25 to 50 years. The revocable lease still might be recommended for property in remote areas where there was little chance of future development and where the lessee would not be tied down to a long lease.

However, for those persons who wanted to build homes in more accessible areas, the 25 to 30-year term lease would provide the chance for them to get their money's worth out of the improvements before they could be ordered to move them.

Paying Double

DES MOINES (AP) — A Des Moines woman made a number of purchases at a variety store. Then she went to her car and discovered her gloves were missing.

She returned to the store and found that the gloves had been put in with her purchases —but she had been charged $2.39 for them.

Double Birthday

CULPEPER, Va. (AP) — This town observed its 200th birthday and Police Chief Roy Jamison his 36th at the same time. The town celebrated with pageants and parades, the chief with a 16-hour day directing traffic.

Spring In Basement

GREEN VILLAGE, N.J. (AP)— The Indians have gone but the spring in the basement of Donald Hendershot's home hasn't.

The spring fills a three-foot pool in a corner of the cellar of the 200-year-old house. Hendershot believes the house was built over the spring so water would be available in case of Indian raids.

A Plum Of A Project

NEPTUNE, N. J. (AP)—Joseph Curto is proud of the wild plum tree he transplanted to his garden some 25 years ago.

But he doesn't call it a plum tree anymore. The tree, through successful grafting, now bears cherries, plums, peaches and apricots.

Beauty For Patients

ENGLEWOOD, N. J. (AP) — Englewood hospital, working on the theory that women feel better when they look their best, has instituted a "bloom closet" for dispensing beauty service.

Women patients receive the beauty treatments either at the hospital's modern salon or at their beds by means of a "glamor wagon." The project is sponsored by the hospital's auxiliary.

Man Can't Clip Bonds So Big Machine Does

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — If anyone can imagine owning so many bonds they can't be clipped by hand—it's true

The state of California is loaded with $2,600,000,000 of the gilt-edged variety, and has installed a mechanical bond clipper to keep up with its work of collecting the interest.

The mechanism will clip 20,000 coupons a day, whereas a man can handle only 8,000 a day with a pair of scissors.

Confronted with the problem of faster clipping, State Treasurer Bert A. Betts, at the suggestion of Herschel Beauchamp, his vault officer, decided to install the mechanism instead of hiring another man and buying more scissors.

Beauchamp was presented with $150 for his money saving suggestion, but a little embarrassment developed when Betts handed him the envelope supposed to contain the check at an office ceremony. There was no check, as the funds used for paying state employees for suggestions were tied up in the pooled investment fund, which is invested in bonds. So Beauchamp had to clip more bonds before the pay-off.

Betts said only one other bond clipper is located on the Pacific Coast. This is in the federal reserve bank in San Francisco.

The Hard Sell

Carl Vredenbreyt told police a man entered his office, asked him if he wanted to buy some scarves and socked him with his fist when Vredenbreyt said no.

This 'Break' Helps

LIVINGSTON, N.J. (UPI) — Eight billion cups of coffee are consumed annually during coffee-breaks in 3,000 industrial and business organizations, the American College of Nutrition reported.

Estimated cost to the employer is 5.5 cents per employee per hour. The ACN said there exists good evidence that fatigue, absenteeism, accident rate, turnover and waste are lowered—as a result of the coffee break.

Smart Shavers

Wear Polishes Silver

NEW YORK (UPI)—The best care you can give your sterling flatware is hard use. The Sterling Silversmiths of America, an association of silver experts, said this makes polishing almost unnecessary and gives the metal a much-desired patina.
